FRONT AND REAR CRANKSHAFT OIL SEALS

REMOVAL

Remove engine. Remove oil pump, crank shaft pulley and timing gear cover. Drive front oil seal from timing gear cover. Remove clutch, flywheel and rear oil seal retainer. Remove seal from retainer.

INSPECTION

Check shaft oil seal surface for wear or roughness. Always replace oil seals whenever they are removed from shaft. Improperly adjusted main bearings cause excess seal leakage.

INSTALLATION

Clean the rear oil seal groove in seal retainer thoroughly. Shell fit groove and outer diameter of seal and press seal into place in groove. Prior to Engine CE 141000 this was a cork seal and care should be taken when installing seal to retainer to eliminate breaking the seal. The seal used since CE 141000 is a felt ring with a Neoprene strip through the center of the felt to eliminate oil seeping through the felt. This seal is more flexible and easy to install. This seal may be used on all other engines in place of the cork seal. With seal in place to retainer locate rear flange of seal and shaft, locate both sides of retainer gasket and press on engine block. Center seal over shaft and place against gasket. Tighten all cap screws and tighten. In later engines the tapered holes for the oil seal retainer cap screws are blind and do not enter crank case of engine, this eliminates oil seepage in cap screws.

The front seal is furnished as an assembly and is pressed into the timing gear cover, a retainer must be used on the outer diameter of seal. Prior to Engine CE 141000 the front seal was of a cork type, this changed to a Neoprene type. The oil grooves were also removed at the front of shaft. Reference with engine CE 141000 a new timing gear cover was used, this cover has oil deflectors to eliminate excessive amount of oil from radiating seal to help eliminate seal leakage. The hole is even for installing seal to retainer larger than in the previous gear covers and a new seal was used. This is the same seal as was used previously on the B engine.
