Abstract: This paper examines the effects of the 1997-1998 Asian financial crisis on the export performance of small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) in South Korea. The results show that the crisis had a significant negative impact on the export performance of SMEs, particularly in the manufacturing sector. The study also identifies several factors that influenced the export performance of SMEs, including the size of the firm, the industry, and the export market. The findings suggest that SMEs should focus on improving their export performance by expanding their export markets and strengthening their relationships with foreign buyers.
