Abstract

Providing the world's population with sufficient and nutritious food through sustainable food systems is a major challenge of the twenty-first century. Fertilizer use is a major driver of crop yield, but a comprehensive synthesis of the effect of fertilizer on the nutritional quality of food crops is lacking. Here we performed a comprehensive global meta-analysis using 7859 data pairs from 551 field experiment-based articles published between 1972 and 2022, assessing the contribution of fertilization with a wide set of plant nutrients to the nutritional quality of food crops (i.e., fruits, vegetables, cereals, pulses/oil crops, and sugar crops). On average, fertilizer application improved crop yield by 30.9% (CI: 28.2–33.7%) and nutritional quality (referring to all nutritionally relevant components assessed: carbohydrates, proteins, oil, vitamin C, representative mineral nutrients, and total soluble solids) by 11.9% (CI: 10.7–12.1%). The improvements were largely nutrient- and crop species dependent, with vegetables being the most responsive. Potassium, magnesium, and micronutrients played important roles in promoting crop nutritional quality, whereas the combined application of inorganic and organic source(s) had the greatest impact on quality. Desirable climatic conditions and soil properties (i.e., silt loam, soil organic matter 2.5–5.0%, and pH 4.5–8.5) supported further enhancements. Considering cross-continent responsiveness, the increase in the nutritional quality of food crops with fertilizer application was greatest in Africa. In a nutshell, our findings pave the way towards a quantitative understanding of nutrient management programs and responsible plant nutrition solutions that foster the sustainable production of nutritious and healthy food crops for human consumption.

Seed Proteins W. Gottschalk,H.P. Müller,2012-12-06 Investigations on seed proteins have been intensively carried out during the past two decades This is valid with regard to both their chemical composition as well as their nutritive value The development of new biochemical and physical methods has resulted in obtaining deep insights into the structures of seed proteins and their mutual interactions Intensive exchange of information between the scientists participating in national and international research programmes has given strong impulses for intensifying the research in this field For the quantitative and qualitative investigations of seed proteins not only some model plants were used on the contrary they were carried out on a large number of different crops important for different regions of the earth In this way a level of knowledge has been reached which could not be expected in this diversity within such a short period This holds not only true for biochemical but also for physiological characters of the species of the limiting amino acids studied With regard to nutritional aspects the problem was of special interest but also seed proteins acting as antinutritional factors were analysed in detail Based on the knowledge of seed protein structures it was possible to perform investigations on the genetic basis of their synthesis This was done under two different aspects The basic knowledge on the genes involved should be widened moreover it should be tried to improve the seed proteins quantitatively and qualitatively under the influence of mutant genes
