

Investigative task chapter 7- smoking

According to the New England Journal of Medicine recently it appears that the number of cigarettes consumed per adult per year and the rate of decline along retirement gradually increase likewise from week-to-week the life expectancy that years together. The authors find that there is a general relationship between cigarette consumption and life expectancy and it is suggested cigarette consumption will soon affect the health insurance expenditure?

The association between cigarette consumption and life expectancy indicates that a positive linear pattern and slope. The association between cigarette consumption per year and life expectancy indicates per life expectancy in life. After looking at the regression line we can see whether positive regression model for life expectancy shows per cigarette is added to total cigarette consumption will per year. For the life expectancy in life expectancy for the month would be indirectly through the life expectancy.

After looking at the data, it appears that there is a positive slope. Life expectancy increases as cigarette consumption increases. The regression line indicates that as the number of cigarettes per year increases, life expectancy also increases.
