According to the New England Journal of Medicine recently it appears that the number of cigarettes consumed per adult per year and the rate of decline in lung function parallel each other. How much do you think the rate of decline in lung function per year is a parallel relationship between cigarette consumption and the decline rate and is cigarette consumption a significant risk factor for the decline in lung function?

The association between cigarette consumption and CVD appears moderate but is positive under passive and active. The association between cigarette consumption per year and CVD mortality appears per 100,000 in 100,000 people smoking at the beginning of the year was 100,000 people per year for CVD mortality. The rate of decline in CVD mortality appears moderate but is positive under passive and active. The rate of decline in CVD mortality for the period 1980-1990 is 100,000 people per year.

Overall, the data suggests that there is a positive relationship between cigarette consumption and CVD mortality. The relationship appears moderate but is positive under passive and active. The rate of decline in CVD mortality for the period 1980-1990 is 100,000 people per year.
