Overview

The study was aimed towards analyzing various possible reasons that can affect students' low grades or their performance at school. It was conducted by three different teachers from different schools.

Findings

The teachers, who taught a variety of ages, from third to twelfth grade, found out the relationship between the problems of late work, the unpreparedness of students, and lax attitudes of students who were not organized.

Data Collection

The data collection methods used in this study were the following: journals, surveys, and students' grades that indicated increased student organization was important to student performance at school.

Action Plan

The study's action plan suggested various methods. One was to fix students' lessons. The second approach was to monitor students' progress and improve them through time.
