SURVIVING THE SAHARA

The Sahara desert has a very extreme climate, with intense heat, little water, and strong winds. There are animals in the Sahara desert, but they have to adapt in order to survive. Most animals in the Sahara get water from what they eat. They hide in burrows during the day to escape from the hot sun. Many animals find their food during the night when the temperature is lower. Some animals have large ears that help them cool off. Other animals have hair on the bottom of their feet, which prevents burns from the hot sand.

have clever ways to adapt in the desert so they can survive.

DESERT ANIMALS

There are many animals that call the desert their home. Most people know about camels and rattlesnakes, but there are other interesting animals too. The Addax antelope lives in the Sahara desert. It has beautiful long and curved antlers. The Deathstalker scorpion is another animal that lives in the Sahara desert. Although its venom is poisonous, it is not strong enough to kill humans. The Armadillo lizard lives in deserts in Africa. When they are scared, they roll up into a ball! All desert animals
