With the engine running, check accessory drive belt tracking on all pulleys. If the edge of the accessory drive belt rubs against the edge of the pulleys, noise and premature wear will occur. Make sure the accessory drive belt rubs correctly on the pulley. If an accessory drive belt tracking condition exists, proceed with the following steps:

- Visually check the necessary drive belt tension for damage and wear, especially the mounting jaw surface and rear alignment. If the necessary drive belt tension is not installed correctly, the necessary surface load will be out of position. If the necessary load is wrong, the jaw will be out of alignment. Either of these conditions will result in slippage and eventual breakage.
- With the engine running, visually observe the position of the pulleys (and the pulley flanges) as the pulley belt and load for excessive rubbing/buckling components or movement.
- Check all necessary mounting brackets and the necessary drive belt tension for any misalignment that would prevent the component from mounting correctly. Correct any misalignment conditions and recheck the necessary drive belt tensioning.
- Tighten all necessary mounting brackets and necessary drive belt tensioning hardware to specification. Recheck the necessary drive belt tensioning.
