B.7 The student knows evolutionary theory is a scientific explanation for the unity and diversity of life.

1C. STAAR Reporting Category 3- BIOLOGICAL EVOLUTION & CLASSIFICATION

B.7 The student knows evolutionary theory is a scientific explanation for the unity and diversity of life.

B.7.1.10 Analyze and evaluate how evidence of ancestral similarity among groups is provided by the fossil record, biogeography, and comparative anatomy and development

1. Evidence for Evolution: The Fossil Record

- Fossils can provide evidence for evolution for the following reasons (check all that apply):
 - _____ Fossils can provide missing links among organisms to suggest common ancestors.
 - _____ Fossils can provide us with a timeline as to how long ago an organism existed.
 - _____ Fossils can reveal the structure of an organism.
 - _____ Fossils can reveal how an organism lived.
 - _____ Fossils can suggest if rapid changes in the environment occurred during the organism's existence.

The diagram at left represents the evolution of the horse from 50 million years ago until now.

2. Based on the information, the common ancestor of the modern day horse and the extinct, four-toed ancestor is the _____.

3. Does the evolution of the modern day horse suggest a rapid change or a gradual change?

4. What is the relationship between the placement of the fossils (the type of rock they are found in) and time?

2. Biogeography Clues

Biogeography is used to study how and why plants and animals live where they do. The distribution of species over geographical areas includes both living species and the fossilized remains of extinct species. Closely related species are usually found in close proximity to one another and fossils from these regions resemble the modern organisms found there.

1C. STAAR Reporting Category 3- BIOLOGICAL EVOLUTION & CLASSIFICATION

B.7 The student knows evolutionary theory is a scientific explanation for the unity and diversity of life.

2. Biogeography Clues

3. Similar Homologous Structures

Homologous structures that are shared among two or more organisms suggest that the organisms share a _____.

10. The common ancestor of humans, dogs, birds, and whales most likely had _____ (fill in the blank).

11. Molecular Evidence for Evolution: DNA and Amino Acids

DNA determines amino acid sequences. By comparing genomes or amino acids, scientists can determine how closely related two or more organisms are. The more closely related the organisms, the more recent their common ancestor.

Species	Amino Acid Differences compared to human cytochrome b
Neotoma	14
Human	0
Mouse (Mus musculus)	1
Chimpanzee	1

The chart at left compares the amino acid sequence of human cytochrome b to the amino acid sequence that codes for the cytochrome b of other animals. Cytochrome b is a protein found in blood.

11. If the amino acid sequence is similar among two groups of organisms, what does that suggest about the shared DNA sequence?

12. According to this chart, which organism would you argue that humans share the most recent common ancestor with and why?

13. Embryonic Development

13. In the table below, list how each structure provides evidence of common ancestry.

Structure	Pharyngeal pouches

1C. STAAR Reporting Category 3- BIOLOGICAL EVOLUTION & CLASSIFICATION

B.7 The student knows evolutionary theory is a scientific explanation for the unity and diversity of life.

2. Biogeography Clues

Island Biogeography

- Remote islands that are difficult to reach attract fewer than mainland islands. However, there are many islands that are difficult to reach but have many species. This is because island biogeography is usually not with species, time, and space.
- Typically, the species found on islands are most like those found on the nearest continents.

Island biogeography is the study of the distribution of species on islands. The diagram at left shows the distribution of species on islands.

1. According to island biogeography, the evidence for evolution, which type of animal did Darwin observe on the Galapagos that was different on each island, yet similar to the mainland species?

2. What did this suggest about the evolution of the different species Darwin observed?

3. Offer an explanation as to how we know that the ancestors of species and forms originated in South America.

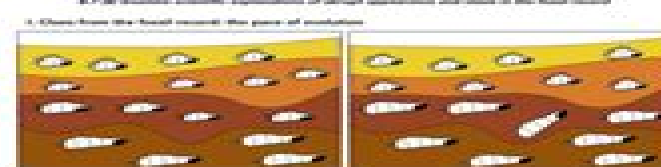

4. How does the current example above support the theory of evolution? In other words, why would the migration of a single common ancestor to 2 different areas result in the formation of 2 different species?

1C. STAAR Reporting Category 3- BIOLOGICAL EVOLUTION & CLASSIFICATION

B.7 The student knows evolutionary theory is a scientific explanation for the unity and diversity of life.

B.7.1.10 Analyze and evaluate how evidence of ancestral appearance and descent in the fossil record

1. In the species above, label the diagrams A and B as either static or rapid in regards to the evolution of the organism represented in the fossil record.

2. In the diagrams above, the oldest fossils would be found in the _____ strata type, and the newest fossils would be found in the _____ strata type.

3. Changes that are slow and steady over a long period of time have described fossils over geologic time periods.

4. Each fossil in the diagram above represents a transitional form as each species evolved. What diagram would best support the result of gradualism and why?

5. Offer an explanation as to why abrupt appearances might occur in the fossil record.
