Amazing Kangaroos

From amphibians to reptiles, the world is full of amazing animals. However, none are cooler than kangaroos. Here's why.

First, most kangaroos have a body especially so they are called "hoppers." You sometimes see that a kangaroo is only about the size of a lion. Sometimes it's even smaller. A baby kangaroo is called a joey. It stays protected inside its pouch for about a year. It stays protected there and grows strong by drinking its mother's milk.

Second, kangaroos are famous for hopping. Did you know it's the only large animal that can "hopping" as its main way of transportation? They do it with the skill of a world-class athlete. And kangaroos can move over 30 miles per hour. Some can jump as high as the top of the air.

Finally, kangaroos are loyal and courageous. They live in groups called "mobs." They usually live with other and when danger is near. Most importantly, they don't eat other animals. They eat grass. A kangaroo does this by stamping its long feet. If it needs to, the kangaroo will fight to protect its mob. It will fight with its long feet or hands. It will even punch its mob.

Without a doubt, the kangaroo is one of the most unique and interesting animals around.
