

Chapter 2 Active Reading Guide The Chemical Context of Life

This chapter covers the basics that you may have learned in your chemistry class. Whether your teacher goes over this chapter, or assigns it for you to review on your own, the questions that follow should help you focus on the most important points.

Section 1

1. Define and give an example of the following terms:

Term	Definition
matter:	All physical substances.
element:	Chemical substances that cannot be broken down
compound:	A mix of two or more elements.

2. What four elements make up 98% of all living matter?

Carbon, Oxygen, Hydrogen, and Nitrogen

3. What is the difference between an essential element and a trace element?

While essential elements are needed in large quantities for an organism to live a healthy life, trace elements are needed in very little amounts.

Section 2

4. Sketch a model of an atom of helium, showing the electrons, protons, neutrons, and atomic nucleus.

5. What is the atomic number of helium? 2 Its atomic mass? 4

Murray, 2011-02-15. This richly illustrated third edition provides a thorough training in practical mathematical biology and shows how exciting mathematical challenges can arise from a genuinely interdisciplinary involvement with the biosciences. It has been extensively updated and extended to cover much of the growth of mathematical biology. From the reviews: "This book, a classical text in mathematical biology, cleverly combines mathematical tools with subject area sciences." SHORT BOOK REVIEWS Concepts and Theories of Human Development Richard M. Lerner, 2013-05-13. A classic in the field, this third edition will continue to be the book of choice for advanced undergraduate and graduate level courses in theories of human development in departments of psychology and human development. This volume has been substantially revised with an eye toward supporting applied developmental science and the developmental systems perspectives. Since the publication of the second edition, developmental systems theories have taken center stage in contemporary developmental science and have provided compelling alternatives to reductionist theoretical accounts having either a nature or nurture emphasis. As a consequence, a developmental systems orientation frames the presentation in this edition. This new edition has been expanded substantially in comparison to the second edition. Special features include: A separate chapter focuses on the historical roots of concepts and theories of human development; on philosophical models of development; and on developmental contextualism Two new chapters surrounding the discussion of developmental contextualism one on developmental systems theories wherein several exemplars of such models are discussed and a corresponding chapter wherein key instances of such theories life span life course bioecological and action theoretical ones are presented A new chapter on cognition and development is included contrasting systems approaches to cognitive development with neo nativist perspectives A more differentiated treatment of nature oriented theories of development is provided There are separate chapters on behavior genetics the controversy surrounding the study of the heritability of intelligence work on the instinctual theory of Konrad Lorenz and a new chapter on sociobiology A new chapter concentrates on applied developmental science
