

INTERACTIONS IN PHYSICS

Interaction

Read the passage carefully before answering.

Interactions between objects often involve forces. These forces include gravity, electric, and magnetic forces among phenomena.

Gravity is a universally attractive force that acts in the down-but-for-an-infinite-range, meaning it can happen between anything in the Universe. Gravity is the force that holds the Earth and the Moon together, and the force that keeps planets in orbit around the Sun.

Electric and magnetic forces are components of the electromagnetic force, which acts on all charged particles. It is the force that holds atoms together, and it is the force that causes static electricity. It is the force that causes lightning.

Scientists determine the direction of these forces by observing the direction of change in the position of the objects. For example, if a ball is thrown upwards, the force of gravity is downwards, causing the ball to slow down and then fall back to the ground.

Understanding these forces helps explain why the planets orbit the Sun, why the Moon orbits the Earth, and why the Earth's magnetic field protects the planet from harmful solar radiation.
