

2. OPERATION

2-1. Operation of Mechanism Section (See Fig. 2-1, Fig. 2-2)

A. Release of Brake

When depressing one of the control buttons PLAY, FF, or REW, the FF or REW plunger moves the brake shoes downwards to release the brake.

B. Operations of PLAY

- 1) When setting the cassette-half, the cassette sensor lever moves upwards to turn on the half-switch. In this condition, the capstan motor begins to rotate.
- 2) Accordingly, the capstan motor drives the capstan through the capstan belt and flywheel.
- 3) When depressing the PLAY button in this condition, the FF and REW plungers move the shift lever upwards through the solenoid and PLAY levers, and moves the stopper arm at the same time.
- 4) The gear rotates in mesh with the gear portion of the flywheel. At the same time, the cam portion of the gear moves the shift arm and the head base upwards.
- 5) Next, the head base lock arm locks the shift arm, and holds the head base at the upward position. After that, the gear stops a distance away from the flywheel.
- 6) In this condition, the pinch roller is pressed against the capstan to drive the tape. In addition, the subidler also moves upwards and, thereby, the motor drives the take-up reel hub assembly through the take-up idler to wind the tape.

C. Operations of REC

- 1) The basic operations are the same as in the PLAY operation. When the erroneous-erasure prevention claw of the cassette half moves the REC Sensor Lever upwards, the erroneous-erasure prevention switch is turned on to enable to perform the REC operation of the logic circuit.
- 2) When depressing the REC button, the REC/PLAY plunger is energized to switch the PLAY/RDC amplifier to the REC mode.

D. Operations of FF

- 1) When depressing the FF button, the FF plunger releases the brake. At the same time, the take-up idler moves upwards, the motor drives the take-up reel hub assembly through the take-up idler.

E. Operations of REW

- 1) When depressing the REW button, the REW plunger releases the brake. At the same time, the take-up idler is directly pressed against the supply reel hub assembly to rotate it.

F. Operations of AMPS (Automatic Music Program Search)

- 1) When depressing the FF or REW button with the AMPS switch set to the STAND-BY position during the PLAY operation, since the CUE REVIEW plunger and either the FF or REW plunger are energized, the head base lock arm returns to the original position to release the locking of the shift arm, with the result that the head base is moved downwards.
- 2) At the position where the head base moves 1.5 mm downwards, the cue review lock lever pushed by the cue review plunger holds the head base. In this condition, the FF or REW operation is performed.
- 3) When no signal portion on the cassette tape comes, since this condition is the same as that where the STOP button is depressed, the locking of the head base by the cue review lock lever is released.
- 4) When the AMPS switch is set to the PLAY position, the basic operation is the same as in the STAND-BY operation. When no signal portion on the cassette tape comes, since this condition is the same as that where the PLAY button is depressed, the operation returns to the PLAY mode again.
