Among 3-year-olds Hermina Sinclair,2013-05-13 translated by Hermina and Morris Sinclair This book was written by a group of researchers with a common theoretical constructivist framework and using the same methods of naturalistic observation and data analysis They considered that collective pretend play would provide excellent opportunities for understanding young children s thinking especially when play arose spontaneously in a familiar environment In such play children often manifest types of knowledge that cannot be captured through experimental work or by observation in adult devised situations Spontaneous play brings out children s own preoccupations their know how in negotiating with one another in order to make sustained play possible their ability to construct coherent sequences and their often surprising insight into adult behavior Play sequences are reported in full and sometimes dramatic detail in each of the chapters Different activities were elicited by different situations though all were observed in the familiar environment of day care centers Different situations play with toys such as cups spoons and dolls with pieces of cloth string and cardboard with grass pebbles and swings in the yard or with hand held puppets allow the authors to discover often unsuspected knowledge among three year olds communicative socio affective societal and psycho social At the same time the authors underline the similarity of the interactive construction processes The data and their analyses provide a solid base for two of Piaget s theoretical arguments peer interaction leads to collaborative processes at an early age and collaboration leads to objective knowledge via the attribution of shared meanings to jointly constructed experiences    The Greek Verb Revisited Steven E.
