Effective Programs for Treating Autism Spectrum Disorder Betty Fry Williams, Randy Lee Williams, 2010-09-15
Effective Programs for Treating Autism Spectrum Disorder is written for teachers, parents, and the many service providers who work with individuals with autism spectrum disorder (ASD). Part one reviews the characteristics of ASD, summarizes major theories and research findings regarding causes of ASD, and discusses the most popular treatment claims, examining each approach's scientific base and value. Part two provides an informative overview of applied behavior analysis, focusing on the principles of learning and basic procedures based upon those principles. These two parts provide a foundation for understanding the strategies implemented by the outstanding treatment programs described in Part three. The eight models described in Part three represent comprehensive evidence-based programs for the treatment of persons with ASD from infancy through adulthood. Programs reviewed include the Lovaas Institute, Koegel Center Strategic Teaching and Reinforcement Systems, STARS Project, DATA, New England Children's Center, May Institute, Princeton Child Development Institute, and Judge Rotenberg Center. Strategies explained include intensive early behavioral intervention, Pivotal Response Training, verbal behavior script fading, social stories, visual activity schedules, functional analysis, the Picture Exchange Communication System, and the Family Teaching Model.

Statistics for the Behavioral Sciences Gregory J.

Privitera, 2017-07-18 The engaging Third Edition of Statistics for the Behavioral Sciences shows students that statistics can be understandable, interesting, and relevant to their daily lives. Using a conversational tone, award-winning teacher and author Gregory J. Privitera speaks to the reader as researcher when covering statistical theory, computation, and application. Robust pedagogy allows students to continually check their comprehension and hone their skills when working through carefully developed problems and exercises that include current research and seamless integration of SPSS. This edition will not only prepare students to be lab ready but also give them the confidence to use statistics to summarize data and make decisions about behavior.

Kids Can Be Kids Shelly J. Lane, Anita C. Bundy, 2011-11-11 This groundbreaking text by two noted educators and practitioners with contributions by specialists in their fields presents a comprehensive, evidence-based approach to pediatric therapy. Their work reflects the focus of practice today, facilitating the participation of children and their families in everyday activities in the context of the physical and cultural environments in which they live, go to school, and play. The authors describe the occupational roles of children in an ecocultural context and examine the influence of that context on the participation of a child with physical, emotional, or cognitive limitations.

Research in Education, 1968-07 Introduction to Early Childhood Education R. E. (Rosemary Elaine) Young, Eva Essa, 1994 Cerebral Palsy: New Developments Antigone Papavasiliou, Sotiria D. Mastroyianni, Hilla Ben-Pazi, Els Ortibus, 2021-09-27 Education Statistics Quarterly, 2005 Interpreting the Evidence on Life Cycle Skill Formation Flavio Cunha, James J. Heckman, 2005 This paper presents economic models of child development that capture the essence of recent findings from the empirical literature on skill formation. The goal of this essay is to provide a theoretical framework for interpreting the evidence from a vast empirical literature for guiding the next generation of empirical studies and for formulating policy. Central to our analysis is the concept that childhood has more than one stage. We formalize the concepts of self productivity and complementarity of human capital investments and use them to explain the evidence on skill formation. Together they explain why skill begets skill through a multiplier process. Skill formation is a life cycle process. It starts in the womb and goes on throughout life. Families play a role in this process that is far more important than the role of schools. There are multiple skills and multiple abilities that are important for adult success. Abilities are both inherited and created and the traditional debate about nature versus nurture is scientifically obsolete. Human capital investment exhibits both self productivity and complementarity. Skill attainment at one stage of the life cycle raises skill attainment at later stages of the life cycle. Self productivity. Early investment facilitates the productivity of later investment. Complementarity. Early investments are not productive if they are not followed up by later investments. Another aspect of complementarity. This complementarity explains why there is no equity efficiency trade off for early investment. The returns to investing early in the life cycle are high. Remediation of inadequate early investments is difficult and very costly as a consequence of both self productivity and complementarity.

Monthly Bulletin, 1941 International Perspectives on Early Childhood Education and Care Susanne Garvis, Sivanes Phillipson, Heidi Harju-Luukkainen, 2018-01-12 The first volume in this Early Childhood Education and Care in the 21st Century International Teaching Family and Policy Perspectives miniseries provides a snapshot of early childhood education and care from 19 different countries around the world. The intention is to provide a description for the policy and provision for young children and their families in each of the unique contemporary contexts. The selection of countries includes every continent in the world to provide variety across cultures, socio economic status, location, population and other unique factors. Some chapters also share the development and history of early childhood in their country including economic and political transitions that lead to changes in early childhood provision and policy. The book provides essential takeaways for early childhood educators, researchers, early childhood organisations, policy makers and those interested to know more about early childhood education within an international perspective.
