It would also consider the use of more efficient policies. Businesses may need to invest more in their own training and development, and have more effective recruitment and retention policies. This would be a win-win situation for both business and society.

Writing Prompt

Write an article in which you give your opinion about whether it is better to have siblings or be an only child. Use information from the passages in your article.

Manage your time effectively and efficiently.

- read the passages;
- plan your response;
- write your response; and
- revise and edit your response.

Be a Safe Boating Buddy

- an introduction;
- information from the passages as support; and
- a conclusion that is related to the information presented.

What response should be in the form of a result? What other responses are there in this form?

The Portfolio Project Terry Underwood,1999 This book is a study in research based narrative form of one middle school s implementation of a new portfolio assessment plan in response to statewide policy changes in California The book highlights the interactions of state district and local forces as teachers work to implement a portfolio assessment plan that collects student work and evaluates it systematically. It examines a portfolio assessment project that views student work through three progressive lenses: warm, value free, cool, analytical, and hard critical. The plot of the book traverses a 15 year period in California during which assessment drove instruction across the state often in unexamined and contradictory ways, always in powerful ways. The book traces the ebb and flow of a variety of assessment philosophies located in living rooms, classrooms, principals' offices, district headquarters, and in downtown Sacramento, the state capital, a variety of philosophies coming and going that left behind fixed, predictable histories of conflict in classrooms. Its story appears to have parallels in the recent history of schools all over the United States. Chapters in the book are 1. Washers, Dryers, and School Reformers, 2. The Portfolio Assessment System as an Innovation at Charles Ruff, 3. Portfolios in Review, 4. The Seeds of Change in California 1983-1994, 5. Ruff Unified School District, 6. Inside the Middle School, 7. Ruff Instruction, 8. Ruff Students and Their Portfolios, and 9. Conclusions and Implications. Contains an Epilogue, an Appendix giving the research method, and an extensive list of works cited. NKA

Interaction Colette Daiute, William Damon, 1993. This volume of New Directions for Child Development is about literacy as a social process. For many years reading and writing were defined in terms of the structure and correctness of the texts. More recently, educators have begun to appreciate the cognitive processes involved in comprehending and composing text. This volume extends beyond these understandings to explore how reading and writing develop in the course of children's social lives as they interact with parents, teachers, and peers. The contributors examine written language as a mode of social discourse and human development rather than as a distinct cognitive skill. This perspective offers insights about how children draw on social and affective resources to support cognitively challenging aspects of written language. For example, children who explain, explore, argue, and play with language and ideas, whether with parents, teachers, or peers, are more likely to grow as writers and readers than children who do not use language in these ways. The research reported here suggests that literacy must be integrated into children's lives because social and affective interactions support conceptual aspects of academic skills like reading and writing. This shift in perspective involves redefining what it means to become literate and what counts as basic skills. This is the 61st issue of New Directions for Child Development.
