Essential Readings in Problem-Based Learning Andrew Walker, Heather Leary, Cindy Hmelo-Silver, 2015-01-15 Like most good educational interventions problem based learning PBL did not grow out of theory but out of a practical problem Medical students were bored dropping out and unable to apply what they had learned in lectures to their practical experiences a couple of years later Neurologist Howard S Barrows reversed the sequence presenting students with patient problems to solve in small groups and requiring them to seek relevant knowledge in an effort to solve those problems Out of his work PBL was born The application of PBL approaches has now spread far beyond medical education Today PBL is used at levels from elementary school to adult education in disciplines ranging across the humanities and sciences and in both academic and corporate settings This book aims to take stock of developments in the field and to bridge the gap between practice and the theoretical tradition originated by Barrows that underlies PBL techniques

Fragmentation in Sleep and Mind: Linking Dissociative Symptoms, Sleep, and Memory Sue Llewellyn, Dalena van Heugten - van der Kloet, 2018-03-27 Fragmented dissociated consciousness can characterize the mind in both wake and sleep states Dissociative symptoms during sleep include vivid dreaming nightmares and alterations in objective sleep parameters e g lengthening of REM sleep During waking hours dissociative symptoms exhibit disparate characteristics encompassing memory problems excessive daydreaming absentmindedness and impairments and discontinuities in perceptions of the self identity and the environment Llewellyn has theorized that a progressive and enduring de differentiation of wake and dream states of consciousness eventually results in schizophrenia a lesser degree of de differentiation may have implications for dissociative symptoms Against a background of de differentiation between the dream and wake states the papers in this volume link consciousness memory and mental illness with a special interest for dissociative symptoms

Physical Activity, Self-Regulation, and Executive Control Across the Lifespan Sean P. Mullen, Peter Hall, 2016-02-05 There is overwhelming evidence linking increased physical activity with positive changes in cognitive functioning and brain health Much of what we know about these interrelationships comes from aerobic exercise training studies with older adults and children This literature has paved the way for the neuroscientific investigation of mechanisms responsible for exercise induced cognitive and brain health enhancement a list that ranges from molecular changes to systemic changes in executive control and neural connectivity A new perspective has also emerged that aims to understand executive control processes that may underlie the regulation of health behavior In accordance with this view physical activity falls under the umbrella of health behaviors that require a substantial amount of executive control Executive control is a limited resource and the aging process depletes this resource People who regularly exercise are said to have higher self regulatory control planning goal shielding and impulse control than irregular exercisers The successful maintenance of physical activity participation in lieu of daily cognitive stressors likely reflects an adaptive resistance to control failures Indeed a handful of studies have shown the relationship between greater executive control and subsequently higher levels of physical activity However little is known about the neural correlates of physical activity adherence or sedentary behavior with the view that neurocognitive factors have an antecedent and reciprocal influence on these behaviors No research has focused on the brain networks responsible for the self regulation of physical activity which likely overlaps with structures and functions playing critical roles in the regulation of other health behaviors Interdisciplinary investigations are needed to explain the extent to which physical activity self regulation and self regulatory failure is dependent upon or under the influence of executive control processes and brain networks Understanding the degree to which self regulatory resources may be enhanced restored and trained will have enormous implications for basic science and applied fields It is also of great import to understand whether or not physical activity self regulation is a domain specific behavior associated with specific brain networks or to determine the extent to which regulatory network sharing occurs The aim of this Frontiers Research Topic is to curate contributions from researchers in social and cognitive neurosciences and related fields whose work involves the study of physical activity behavior self regulation and executive control For this Research Topic we therefore solicit reviews original research articles and opinion papers which draw theoretical or empirical connections related to sustained physical activity behavior self regulatory strategies cognitive performance and brain structure and function While focusing on work in the neurosciences this Research Topic also welcomes contributions in the form of behavioral studies psychophysiological investigations and methodological innovations This Frontiers Research Topic will carve out new directions for the fields of exercise cognitive and social neurosciences We hope you will consider submitting your work

Biosignal Processing and Computational Methods to Enhance Sensory Motor Neuroprosthetics Mitsuhiro Hayashibe, David Guiraud, Jose L. Pons, Dario Farina, 2016-01-22 Though there have been many developments in sensory motor prosthetics they have not yet reached the level of standard and worldwide use like pacemakers and cochlear implants One challenging issue in motor prosthetics is the large variety of patient situations which depending on the type of neurological disorder To improve neuroprosthetic performance beyond the current limited use of such systems robust bio signal processing and model based control involving actual sensory motor state with biosignal feedback would bring about new modalities and applications and could be a breakthrough toward adaptive neuroprosthetics Recent advances of Brain Computer Interfaces BCI now enable patients to transmit their intention of movement However the functionality and controllability of motor prosthetics itself can be further improved to take advantage of BCI interfaces In this Research Topic we welcome contribution of original research articles computational and experimental studies review articles and methodological advances related to biosignal processing that may enhance the functionality of sensory motor neuroprosthetics The scope of this topic includes but is not limited to studies aimed at enhancing 1 computational biosignal processing in EMG Electromyography EEG Electroencephalography and other modalities of biofeedback information 2 the computational method in modeling and control of sensory motor neuroprosthetics 3 the systematic functionality aiming to provide solutions for specific pathological movement disorders 4 human interfaces such as BCI but in the case of BCI study manuscripts should be experimental studies which are applied to sensory motor neuroprosthetics in patients with motor disabilities

Mapping Human Sensory-Motor Skills for Manipulation onto the Design and Control of Robots Matteo Bianchi, Gionata Salvietti, 2019-03-25 Humans are endowed with extraordinary sensory motor capabilities that enable a successful interaction with and exploration of the environment as is the case of human manipulation Understanding and modeling these capabilities represents an important topic not only for neuroscience but also for robotics in a mutual inspiration both to inform the design and control of artificial systems and at the same time to increase knowledge on the biological side Within this context synergies i.e. goal directed actions that constrain multi DOFs of the human body and can be defined at the kinematic muscular neural level have gained increasing attention as a general simplified approach to shape the development of simple and effective artificial devices The execution of such purposeful sensory motor primitives on the biological side leverages on the interplay of the sensory motor control at central and peripheral level and the interaction of the human body with the external world This interaction is particularly important considering the new concept of robotic soft manipulation i.e. soft adaptable yet robust robotic hands that can deform with the external environment to multiply their grasping and manipulation capabilities Under this regard a preeminent role is reserved to touch being that skin is our primary organ to shape our knowledge of the external world and hence to modify it in interaction with the efferent parts This Research Topic reports results on the mutual inspiration between neuroscience and robotics and on how it is possible to translate neuroscientific findings on human manipulation into engineering guidelines for simplified systems able to take full advantage from the interaction and hence exploitation of environmental constraints for task accomplishment and knowledge acquisition
