

Analysing a piece of art in six stages

Comparing and contrasting different works is a very effective way for analysing art. Researcher is placed up art to never created in isolation. It is always interacting with or against other influences. Before you begin you should always have known the piece.

What are I looking at this piece of work?

What is identity of the work when in the work you want to address?

What is the artist referred to your own handwriting?

Description

Formal analysis

Interpretation

Style

Context

Judgement

Description

What is the name of the artist and his/her nationality?

What is the name of the work and the date it was completed?

What kind of media was used?

Interpretation

What subject is the artist exploring?

What feelings or emotions does the work evoke?

Is there a message in the work?

Can you identify a movement?

What do the images mean? -> Are there a literal representations or symbols?

Formal analysis

How has the composition of the work been organized?

How has the artist used light?

What is the scale of the work?

How is the space depicted?

Are there, interestingly three-dimensional or do the shapes dominate?

Is the image constructed through line?

Are the elements placed in the work naturalistic or distorted?

Describe the surface of the work -> how is texture used?

What is the colour scheme? Is it harmonious and balanced or does it have contrast?

What is the relationship between these elements?

Is there a focal point or central point?

How does this affect the overall work?

How has the work been made? (For example: with pre-prepared work, very quickly or over a long period of time?)
