

Document 14: Vasco da Gama, a Portuguese explorer, wrote for the King of Portugal he found a new route to India. In 1497 his sailors rounded the Cape of Good Hope and reached Calicut (Calcutta) India on May 20, 1498. Excerpt from da Gama's journal.

1498. Calicut. [Arrived.] That night [May 20] we landed near the [mosque] from the city of Calicut ... On the following day [May 21] several merchants came to greet us, among the captains of ships that served the sultan of Calicut, and those with whom we were to speak for the [sultan's] [goods]. These, firstly, were Arabians, Egyptians and Gujaratis. The first greeting that we received was on their knees. "May the Lord take thee with him, Portuguese man [father!]" They asked what we brought for the king [of India], and he told them that we had come in search of Christians and of spices. They said: "May Allah not take thee off [Earth], thinking of [him], for the [king] will give thee great riches!" He said that the king of Portugal would not consent to their doing so, and they said the only right thing. After this conversation they gave him as many [gold] coins and garments as they could find and return. When he had eaten, and returned to his ship, accompanied by one of the sailors, who was his companion and servant, when he had taken leave of the king, saying, "I have brought thee the [goods] that thou hast asked for, and I have given thee great riches for thee, for [the king] has brought thee the [goods] that thou hast asked for."
