

A close-up photograph of a plate of Belizean Salbutes (tacos). The tacos are made with soft, slightly browned tortillas and are filled with a variety of ingredients, including shredded meat (likely chicken or beef), melted cheese, shredded lettuce, and diced tomatoes. The plate is white, and the background is a plain, light color.

Home Cooking in the Global Village

Richard Wilk, 2006-02-01 Winner of the Society for Economic Anthropology Annual Book Prize 2008. Belize: a tiny corner of the Caribbean wedged into Central America has been a fast food nation since buccaneers and pirates first stole ashore. As early as the 1600s it was already caught in the great paradox of globalization: how can you stay local and relish your own home cooking while tasting the delights of the global marketplace? Menus, recipes and bad colonial poetry combine with Wilk's sharp anthropological insight to give an important new perspective on the perils and problems of globalization.

Women and the Ancestors

Virginia Kerns, 1997 This classic study of Black Carib culture and its preservation through ancestral rituals organized by older women now includes a foreword by Constance R. Sutton and an afterword by the author. One of the outstanding studies of this genre. Refreshingly, the book has good photographs as well as strong endnotes and bibliography and very useful tables, figures, maps and index.

Choice: An outstanding contribution to the literature on female-centered, bilateral kinship and residence.

Grant D. Jones, American Ethnologist: A richly detailed account of a contemporary culture in which older women are important, valued and self-respecting.

Anthropology and Humanism Quarterly: A combination of competent research, interwoven themes and an easily readable, sometimes beautifully evocative prose style.

East Indian Folk Culture in Belize

Elizabeth Joan Cardenas, 1991 Ethnicity in the Caribbean

Gert Oostindie, 2005-10-01 Race and biologized conceptions of ethnicity have been potent factors in the making of the Americas. They remain crucial even if more ambiguously than before. This collection of essays addresses the workings of ethnicity in the Caribbean a part of the Americas where from the early days of empire through today s post colonial limbo this phenomenon has arguably remained in the center of public society as well as private life. These analyses of race and nation building increasingly significant in today s world are widely pertinent to the study of current and international relations. The ten prominent scholars contributing to this book focus on the significance of ethnicity for social structure and national identity in the Caribbean. Their essays span a period from the initial European colonization right through today s paradoxical balance sheet of decolonization. They deal with the entire region as well as the significance of the diaspora and the continuing impact of metropolitan linkages. The topics addressed vary from the international repercussions of Haiti s black revolution through the position of French Caribbean b k s and the Barbadian redlegs to race in revolutionary Cuba from Puerto Rican dance etiquette through the Latin American and Caribbean identity essay to the discourse of Dominican nationhood and from a mus e imaginaire in Guyane through Jamaica s post independence culture to the predicament of Dutch Caribbean decolonization. Taken together these essays provide a rare and extraordinarily rich comparative perspective to the study of ethnicity as a crucial factor shaping both intimate relations and the public and even international dimension of Caribbean societies. Belize, 2005
