Guns & Rain David Lan,1985 Almost every anti colonial struggle this century has been led by an army of guerrillas No such struggle has succeeded without a very high degree of cooperation between guerrillas and the local peasantry But what does cooperation between peasants and guerrillas really consist of What effect does it have on the way they view the world for which they fight In the struggle for Zimbabwe 1966 80 hundreds of thousands of peasants provided the guerrillas with practical help and support But they went a good deal further Throughout the country scores of spirit mediums the religious leaders of Shona gave active support to resistance With their participation the scale of the war expanded into an astonishing act of collaboration between ancestors and their descendants the past and the present the living and the dead This book is a detailed study of one key operational zone in the Zambezi valley It shows that to understand the meaning the war and independence have for the people of Zimbabwe themselves we must take into account not only the nationalist guerrillas and politicians the bearers of guns but also the mediums of the spirits of the Shona royal ancestors the bringers of rain Publisher

The Invention of God in Indigenous Societies James Cox,2014-09-19 Indigenous societies around the world have been historically disparaged by European explorers colonial officials and Christian missionaries Nowhere was this more evident than in early descriptions of indigenous religions as savage primitive superstitious and fetishistic Liberal intellectuals both indigenous and colonial reacted to this by claiming that before indigenous peoples ever encountered Europeans they all believed in a Supreme Being The Invention of God in Indigenous Societies argues that by alleging that God can be located at the core of pre Christian cultures this claim effectively invents a tradition which only makes sense theologically if God has never left himself without a witness Examining a range of indigenous religions from North America Africa and Australasia the Shona of Zimbabwe the Rainbow Spirit Theology in Australia the Yupiit of Alaska and the M ori of New Zealand the book argues that the interests of indigenous societies are best served by carefully describing their religious beliefs and practices using historical and phenomenological methods just as would be done in the study of any world religion Space, Time

Vogel,1997-08-20 Explore the dynamics of precolonial African life in this comprehensive encyclopedia A bibliography is provided for each article to guide readers with further research With over 100 articles and extensive maps photos and figures the Encyclopedia of Precolonial Africa is essential reading for all students professionals and avocationalists of African archaeology history linguistics and culture Continuity and Change Gilbert Pwiti,1996 The South African Archaeological Bulletin,2003 Shadows of Our Ancestors Robert S. Burrett,1998 The Soapstone Birds of Great Zimbabwe Edward Matenga,1998 Beautifully produced and illustrated this study of the Zimbabwean birds is more than a description or history of the eight soapstone carvings found at the Great Zimbabwe historical site It offers an insight into an aspect of the cultural heritage of Zimbabwe and an interpretation of the important site of Great Zimbabwe from which it is inherited The story of the birds is used to explore themes in Zimbabwean historiography By focusing on the religious symbolism of the birds the author argues that the Great Zimbabwe site was both a political and religious centre Practically the work illustrates the central symbolic meaning of the birds to the people and nation of Zimbabwe And the work is in the context of the construction of an authentic national history In a foreward the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Zimbabwe says that the birds are constitutents of a living tradition embodying the body spirit of the modern national state of Zimbabwe Botswana Notes and Records ,1973 Nyanga Robert C. Soper,2002 The stone ruins of the Nyanga area of eastern Zimbabwe have intrigued observers since they were first reported to the outside world at the end of the 19th century The early fanciful speculations about their meaning have been gradually tempered over the years by the findings of systematic archaeological research culminating in the project recently completed by the British Institute in Eastern Africa and the University of Zimbabwe The first stages of the Nyanga complex were established between the 13th and 14th century AD on some of the highest peaks of the region Subsequent stages saw a gradual expansion downhill with the construction of multiple stone terraces cattle pens and settlements In this book Robert Soper and his colleagues sets out the accumulated evidence for the Nyanga complex as far as we now know it Overall the Nyanga sequence raises obvious questions about environmental changes and climatic fluctuations during the last millennium More particularly the various stages begin to reveal how the local farming community grappled with these changes including those induced by its own intensive use of the landscape and its resources Journal of African Archaeology ,2006 Historical Archaeology ,1999 Privileged Places in South Central Mozambique Solange Macamo,2006 Zimbabwea ,2007 Southern Africa and the Swahili World Felix Chami,Gilbert Pwiti,2002 The sequel to People Contacts and the Environment in the African Past published under the auspices of a thriving and diverse regional archaeology research project Human Responses and Contributions to Environmental Change in Africa The book series aims to disseminate the project s results and stimulate debate on current issues relating to the archaeology of the region from specific and regional perspectives The editors present an overview study of the Swahili World and the excavation of Kaole ruins and there is a chapter in French on the bi partition of Swahili sites taking the example of Gede Three papers are on Zimbabwean archaeology one of which presents findings from recent surveys in northern Zimbabwe and their contribution to an understanding of the cultural history and spatial behaviour of pre historic farming communities in the area The other papers cover the merits of using ceramics as material culture to interpret aspects of pre historic human behaviour in Southern Africa the history of glass beads and iron metallurgy across the region and the effect of geo environmental aspects on the location of sites on the central coast of Tanzania People Making History Peter S. Garlake, Andre Proctor, T.
