Inhaltsangabe Abstract Within the framework of this thesis a questionnaire based survey was carried out among British conference organisers to find out the extent to which the use of project network techniques as a planning and monitoring tool has become widespread which advantages or disadvantages it has when used in conference management and on which factors the use of PNT depends In conference related literature little attention is paid to these techniques their existence is only mentioned in a brief sentence if at all However conference management is project management and therefore a systematic formalised planning approach should be imperative The survey revealed that PNT s are not a commonly used planning tool among conference organisers Only one of the 63 respondents indicated that they use network analysis software Reasons for not using network analysis include the costs and above all the ignorance about its benefits Popular techniques to plan and monitor events are hand written or computer stored tasklists For particular requirements such as registration badging invoicing etc meeting planning software is used However it is not used very often for scheduling and budgeting which are the two main areas of application of network analysis The survey and a closer look at commercial meeting planning software reveal that network analysis features are not incorporated Cross tabulations between the variable Use of meeting planning software and demographic and company specific factors age sex position nature of organisation number of employees number of events organised each year revealed that there is a general tendency to not use meeting planning software However generalisations cannot be made because the number of respondents within the different response categories is generally too low to allow for valid statistical statements Inhaltsverzeichnis Table of Contents Figures Tables and Diagrams 7 1 Introduction 11 2 Research Methodology 15 2 1 Introduction 15 2 2 Literature Review 17 2 3 Research Methods 21 2 3 1 Qualitative Research Action Research 21 2 3 2 Quantitative Research Survey Research 25 2 3 2 1 Sampling 27 2 3 2 2 Questionnaire Design and Pre testing 30 2 3 2 3 Reliability and Validity 33 2 3 2 4 Data Coding and Analysis 34 2 3 2 5 Ethical Issues 35 2 4 Summary 36 3 Conference Management 37 3 1 Introduction 37 3 2 Project Management Process Key Phases 40 3 2 1 Strategic and Operational      National Computer Security Conference, 1993 (16th) Proceedings DIANE Publishing Company, 1995-08 Presentations of a conference Covers a wide range of topics spanning the new draft Federal Criteria for Information Security research and development activities techniques for building secure computer systems and networks and ethics issues Papers and panels address harmonization of U S criteria for information technology security with

Modeling and Transformation of Workflows with Temporal Constraints Wolfgang Gruber,2004 Workflow management systems support the execution of business processes they require the modeling of the processes they drive the actual enactment of process instances and they document the business process execution Many different modeling languages and systems have been developed for the design and representation of business processes and workflows as a consequence of different requirements different purposes as well as different schools and modeling philosophies The differences are partly on a conceptual level in the sense that the modeling languages offer different concepts and constructs and partly on the representation level where basically the same constructs are represented differently e g text or graph based This book makes two important contributions to workflow modeling Firstly it provides a metamodel based on abstract modeling concepts which copes with representation differences of workflow descriptions Secondly it introduces a set of equivalence transformations on workflow models Such transformations are an important tool for workflow developments as they allow representing workflows differently for different purposes These transformations are used in algorithms for checking the satisfiability of temporal constraints in workflow definitions Using this apparatus made it possible to develop a sophisticated time management system for workflows which not only checks temporal constraints but can also be used to develop time plans for workflow execution      Data Analysis, Data Modeling, and Classification Martin E.
