Compendium of Community

Provisions on Social Security ,1986 Social Security Richard C. Leone, Greg Anrig,1999 The debate over the future of Social Security the federal government s largest and most successful domestic program is at center stage in Washington Unfortunately many Americans who recognize the importance of the issue have become confused both by the complexity of the topic and an abundance of contradictory and misleading political rhetoric This book attempts to clarify critical facts about Social Security and its future while highlighting widely repeated but inaccurate claims about the system Topics explored include myths and misunderstandings about public opinion toward Social Security the potential impact of the retirement of the baby boom generation on the American economy whether Americans are saving enough for retirement the relationship between the program and the federal budget and misperceptions about the extent to which the stock market can and cannot help the system s long term prospects The volume is edited by Richard C Leone president of The Century Foundation and Gregory Anrig Jr vice president Contributing authors include Brookings Institution economists Henry J Aaron Robert D Reischauer and William Gale former Social Security Commissioner Robert M Ball and Brandeis University economist James H Schulz

Social Security Programs Throughout The World: Europe, 2012 ,2012-10-24 This first issue in the current four volume series of Social Security Programs Throughout the World reports on the countries of Europe The combined findings of this series which also includes volumes on Asia and the Pacific Africa and the Americas are published at six month intervals over a two year period Each volume highlights features of social security programs in the particular region The information contained in these volumes is crucial to the efforts and those of researchers in other countries to review different ways of approaching social security challenges that will enable us to adapt our social security systems to the evolving needs of individuals households and families These efforts are particularly important as each nation faces major demographic changes especially the increasing number of aged persons as well as economic and fiscal issues The country summaries show each system's major features. Separate programs in the public sector and specialized funds for such groups as agricultural workers, collective farmers or the self employed have not been described in any detail. Benefit arrangements of private employers or individuals are not described in any detail even though such arrangements may be mandatory in some countries or available as alternatives to statutory programs. The country summaries also do not refer to international social security agreements that may be in force between two or more countries. The term social security in this report refers to programs established by statute that insure individuals against interruption or loss of earning power and for certain special expenditures arising from marriage, birth or death. This definition also includes allowances to families for the support of children. Protection of the insured person and dependents usually is extended through cash payments to replace at least a portion of the income lost as the result of old age, disability or death, sickness and maternity, work injury, unemployment or through services primarily hospitalization, medical care and rehabilitation. Measures providing cash benefits to replace lost income are usually referred to as income maintenance programs. Measures that finance or provide direct services are referred to as benefits in kind.

Financial Capability and Asset Building in Vulnerable Households Margaret Sherraden, Julie Birkenmaier, J. Michael Collins, 2018-03-28. Financial struggles of American families are headline news. In communities across the nation families feel the pinch of stagnant and sometimes declining incomes. Many have not recovered from the Great Recession when millions lost their homes and retirement savings. They are bombarded daily with vexing financial decisions. Which bills to pay. Where to cash checks. How to cover an emergency. How to improve a credit report. How to bank online. How to save for the future. Low and moderate income families have few places to turn for guidance on financial matters. Not many can afford to pay a financial advisor to help navigate an increasingly complex financial world. They do their best with advice from family and trusted individuals. Social workers, financial counselors and human services professionals can help. As first responders they assist families and help in finding financial support from public and private sources. But these professionals are too often unprepared to address the full range of financial troubles of ordinary working families. Financial Capability and Asset Building in Vulnerable Households prepares social workers, financial counselors and other human service professionals for financial practice with vulnerable families. Building on more than 20 years of research the book sets the stage with key concepts, historical antecedents and current financial challenges of families in America. It provides knowledge and tools to assist families in pressing financial circumstances and offers a lifespan perspective of financial capability and environmental influences on financial behaviors and actions. Furthermore the text details practice principles and skills for direct interventions as well as for designing financial services and policy innovations. It is an essential resource for preparing the next generation of practitioners who can enable families to achieve economic security and development.
