Geochemical Modeling for Mine Site Characterization and Remediation D. Kirk Nordstrom,Andrew Nicholson,2017-10-01 The single most important factor for the successful application of a geochemical model is the knowledge and experience of the individual's conducting the modeling Geochemical Modeling for Mine Site Characterization and Remediation is the fourth of six volumes in the Management Technologies for Metal Mining Influenced Water series about technologies for management of metal mine and metallurgical process drainage This handbook describes the important components of hydrogeochemical modeling for mine environments primarily those mines where sulfide minerals are present metal mines and coal mines It provides general guidelines on the strengths and limitations of geochemical modeling and an overview of its application to the hydrogeochemistry of both unmined mineralized sites and those contaminated from mineral extraction and mineral processing. The handbook includes an overview of the models behind the codes, explains vital geochemical computations, describes several modeling processes, provides a compilation of codes and gives examples of their application including both successes and failures. Hydrologic modeling is also included because mining contaminants most often migrate by surface water and groundwater transport and contaminant concentrations are a function of water residence time as well as pathways. This is an indispensable resource for mine planners and engineers, environmental managers, land managers, consultants, researchers, government regulators, nongovernmental organizations, students, stakeholders, and anyone with an interest in mining influenced water. The other handbooks in the series are Basics of Metal Mining Influenced Water Mitigation, Metal Mining Influenced Water, Mine Pit Lakes Characteristics, Predictive Modeling and Sustainability Techniques for Predicting Metal Mining Influenced Water and Sampling and Monitoring for the Mine Life Cycle, Cars & Parts, 1999, Construction Methods and Equipment, 1952, Catalog of Additions to the Manuscripts in the British Museum, British Museum, Department of Manuscripts, 1880.

National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Committee on the Assessment of Technologies for Improving Fuel Economy of Light-Duty Vehicles, Phase 2, 2015-09-28. The light duty vehicle fleet is expected to undergo substantial technological changes over the next several decades. New powertrain designs, alternative fuels, advanced materials and significant changes to the vehicle body are being driven by increasingly stringent fuel economy and greenhouse gas emission standards. By the end of the next decade, cars and light duty trucks will be more fuel efficient, weigh less, emit less air pollutants, have more safety features and will be more expensive to purchase relative to current vehicles. Though the gasoline powered spark ignition engine will continue to be the dominant powertrain configuration even through 2030, such vehicles will be equipped with advanced technologies, materials, electronics and controls, and aerodynamics. And by 2030, the deployment of alternative methods to propel and fuel vehicles and alternative modes of transportation including autonomous vehicles will be well underway. What are these new technologies, how will they work, and will some technologies be more effective than others? Written to inform The United States Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) and greenhouse gas (GHG) emission standards, this new report from the National Research Council is a technical evaluation of costs, benefits and implementation issues of fuel reduction technologies for next generation light duty vehicles. Cost, Effectiveness, and Deployment of Fuel Economy Technologies for Light Duty Vehicles estimates the cost, potential efficiency improvements and barriers to commercial deployment of technologies that might be employed from 2020 to 2030. This report describes these promising technologies and makes recommendations for their inclusion on the list of technologies applicable
