Using Graywater and Stormwater to Enhance Local Water Supplies National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee on the Beneficial Use of Graywater and Stormwater: An Assessment of Risks, Costs, and Benefits, 2016-07-30 Chronic and episodic water shortages are becoming common in many regions of the United States and population growth in water scarce regions further compounds the challenges. Increasingly alternative water sources such as graywater untreated wastewater that does not include water from the toilet but generally includes water from bathroom sinks showers bathtubs clothes washers and laundry sinks and stormwater water from rainfall or snow that can be measured downstream in a pipe culvert or stream shortly after the precipitation event are being viewed as resources to supplement scarce water supplies rather than as waste to be discharged as rapidly as possible. Graywater and stormwater can serve a range of non potable uses including irrigation toilet flushing washing and cooling although treatment may be needed. Stormwater may also be used to recharge groundwater which may ultimately be tapped for potable use. In addition to providing additional sources of local water supply harvesting stormwater has many potential benefits including energy savings pollution prevention and reducing the impacts of urban development on urban streams. Similarly the reuse of graywater can enhance water supply reliability and extend the capacity of existing wastewater systems in growing cities. Despite the benefits of using local alternative water sources to address water demands many questions remain that have limited the broader application of graywater and stormwater capture and use. In particular limited information is available on the costs benefits and risks of these projects and beyond the simplest applications many state and local public health agencies have not developed regulatory frameworks for full use of these local water resources. To address these issues Using Graywater and Stormwater to Enhance Local Water Supplies analyzes the risks costs and benefits on various uses of graywater and stormwater. This report examines technical economic regulatory and social issues associated with graywater and stormwater capture for a range of uses including non potable urban uses irrigation and groundwater recharge. Using Graywater and Stormwater to Enhance Local Water Supplies considers the quality and suitability of water for reuse treatment and storage technologies and human health and environmental risks of water reuse. The findings and recommendations of this report will be valuable for water managers citizens of states under a current drought and local and state health and environmental agencies. Location of
