

Chapter 10—Launching the New Shape of Nation, 1789–1800

Section 1: Introduction

George Washington

Alexander Hamilton

- After the battles over adoption of the Constitution, conflict continued to rage about the nature of government. Some, such as Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, supported a limited government. Others, such as George Washington and Alexander Hamilton, hoped to extend the powers of the government in order to create institutions that could serve the new country.

Section 2: Growing Pains

- When the Constitution's new government was launched in 1789, the nation's population was doubling about every twenty-five years.
- All of the following are accurate descriptions of the young American nation except:
  - Its population was still about 90 percent rural, despite the flourishing cities.
  - The first official census of 1790 recorded almost 4 million people.
  - All but 5 percent of the people lived east of the Appalachian Mountains.
  - Most of the population lived in the eastern seaboard cities.
  - Foreign visitors looked down at the roughness and crudity of the growing life.
- People of the western waters—in the swampy, scrubbed clearings of Kentucky, Tennessee, and Ohio—were particularly restive and obviously loyal. The mouth of the Ohio was their life-giving outlet, key to the lands of unfriendly Spaniards.

Washington for President

- George Washington, the esteemed war hero, was chosen as president by the Electoral College in 1789—the only presidential nominee ever to be honored by unanimity.
- Washington's long journey from Mount Vernon to Philadelphia, the temporary capital, was a triumphal procession.
- Washington soon put his stamp on the new government, especially by establishing the Department of State. At first only three full-fledged departments would serve under the president: Secretary of State, Secretary of the Treasury, and Secretary of War.

Bill of Rights

John Jay

Bill of Rights

Decatury Act of 1789

- One of the major criticisms of the Constitution, as drafted in Philadelphia, was that it did not provide guarantees for individual rights.

The Brief American Pageant David M. Kennedy, Thomas A. Bailey, Mel Piehl, 1993      Content Area Reading John E. Readence, 1989      Literacy and Learning in the Content Areas Sharon Kane, 2017-07-05 The 3rd Edition of Literacy Learning in the Content Areas helps readers build the knowledge, motivation, tools, and confidence they need as they integrate literacy into their middle and high school content area classrooms. Its unique approach to teaching content area literacy actively engages preservice and practicing teachers in reading and writing and the very activities that they will use to teach literacy to their own students in middle and high school classrooms. Rather than passively learning about strategies for incorporating content area literacy activities, readers get hands on experience in such techniques as mapping, webbing, anticipation guides, booktalks, class websites, and journal writing and reflection. Readers also learn how to integrate children's and young adult literature, primary sources, biographies, essays, poetry, and online content, communities, and websites into their classrooms. Each chapter offers concrete teaching examples and practical suggestions to help make literacy relevant to students' content area learning. Author Sharon Kane demonstrates how relevant reading, writing, speaking, listening, and visual learning activities can improve learning in content area subjects and at the same time help readers meet national content knowledge standards and benchmarks.      *Catalogue of Title-entries of Books and Other Articles Entered in the Office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, Under the Copyright Law ... Steinberg, 1992 This book provides alternative answers to those questions about the American educational system that have been answered until now by an outmoded, conservative educational agenda. Following the introduction that describes the rationale for a postmodern deconstruction of educational narratives, 13 chapters present essays on the following questions: 1. What are the basics and are we teaching them? 2. Who decides the form schools have taken and who should decide? 3. Is it true that teachers are not as good as they used to be? 4. Do students misbehave more than they used to? 5. What good is teaching and how do we teach people to be good teachers? 6. Should the fact that we live in a democratic society make a difference in what our schools are like? 7. In what ways does gender affect the educational process? 8. In what ways does race affect the educational process? 9. In what ways does class affect the educational process? 10. What role should religion play in the public schools? 11. What have been the effects of the attempts to improve education over the last decade? 12. What's missing in the public conversation about education? And 13. What are schools for and what should we be doing in the name of education? References accompany each chapter. Lmi      AV Guide, 1955      Since 1865 Kennedy, David M.
