New Directions in Assessing Historical Thinking Kadriye Ercikan, Peter Seixas, 2015-02-20 New technologies have radically transformed our relationship to information in general and to little bits of information in particular. The assessment of history learning which for a century has valued those little bits as the centerpiece of its practice now faces not only an unprecedented glut but a disconnect with what is valued in history education. More complex processes historical thinking historical consciousness or historical sense making demand more complex assessments. At the same time advances in scholarship on assessment open up new possibilities. For this volume Kadriye Ercikan and Peter Seixas have assembled an international array of experts who have collectively moved the fields of history education and assessment forward. Their various approaches negotiate the sometimes conflicting demands of theoretical sophistication empirically demonstrated validity and practical efficiency. Key issues include articulating the cognitive goals of history education the relationship between content and procedural knowledge the impact of students language literacy on history assessments and methods of validation in both large scale and classroom assessments. New Directions in Assessing Historical Thinking is a critical research oriented resource that will advance the conceptualization design and validation of the next generation of history assessments

Medical Education for the 21st Century Michael S. Firstenberg, Stanislaw P. Stawicki, 2022-06-01 Medical education has undergone a substantial transformation from the traditional models of the basic classroom laboratory and bedside that existed up to the late 20th century. The focus of this text is to review the spectrum of topics that are essential to the training of 21st century healthcare providers. Modern medical education goes beyond learning physiology, pathophysiology, anatomy, pharmacology and how they apply to patient care. Contemporary medical education models incorporate multiple dimensions including digital information management, social media platforms, effective teamwork, emotional and coping intelligence, simulation, as well as advanced tools for teaching both hard and soft skills. Furthermore, this book also evaluates the evolving paradigm of how teachers can teach and how students can learn and how the system evaluates success.

Assessing Computational Thinking David Weintrop, Daisy W. Rutstein, Marie Bienkowski, Steven McGee, 2023-09-12 This book presents different approaches for answering the question How do we assess computational thinking? The result is a snapshot of the current state of the field for assessing computational thinking. The last decade has seen rapid growth in the presence of computational thinking (CT) in educational contexts. Those working to advance CT argue that the concepts and skills associated with CT are essential to succeed in an increasingly computational world. As a result of these efforts, there has been tremendous growth in curricula, learning environments, and innovations around CT education in K-12 classrooms and beyond. As CT grows in prominence, so too does the need to be able to effectively and equitably assess learners' CT abilities. This volume is a collection of chapters pursuing different approaches for answering the question How do we assess computational thinking? The answers provided span age ranges, formal and informal contexts, conceptual aspects of CT, and varying methodological and evaluative strategies. Collectively, the volume captures the current state of the field for assessing computational thinking and lays the groundwork for future CT assessment innovation. Assessing Computational Thinking will be a key resource for academics, researchers, and advanced students of Education, Educational Assessment, Educational Research, Psychology, and Research Methods. The chapters included in this book were originally published as a special issue of Computer Science Education.
