National Audit Office: Universal Credit: Early Progress - HC 621 Great Britain. National Audit Office, 2013 This report concludes that the Department for Work and Pensions has not achieved value for money in its early implementation of Universal Credit The Department was overly ambitious in both the timetable and scope of the programme took risks to try to meet the short timescale and used a new project management approach which it had never before used on a programme of this size and complexity It was unable to explain how it originally decided on its ambitious plans or evaluated their feasibility Nor did it have any adequate measures of progress Over 70 per cent of the 425 million spent to date has been on IT systems and 34 million of its new IT systems has been written off The existing systems offer limited functionality the current IT system lacks a component to identify potentially fraudulent claims so that the Department has to rely on multiple manual checks on claims and payments Problems with the IT system have delayed national roll out of the programme which will reduce the expected benefits of reform and if the 2017 completion date remains increase risks by requiring the rapid migration of a large volume of claimants The source of many problems has been the absence of a detailed view of how Universal Credit is meant to work In addition poor control and decision making undermined confidence in the programme and contributed to a lack of progress The Department has particularly lacked IT expertise and experienced frequent changes in senior management

The Lisbon Recognition Convention at 15: making fair recognition a reality Sjur Bergan, Carita Blomqvist, 2014-05-13 The Lisbon Recognition Convention developed by the Council of Europe and UNESCO is the main international legal text on the international recognition of qualifications and has been ratified by more than 50 countries Few Council of Europe conventions have achieved a greater number of ratifications and the political importance of the Lisbon Recognition Convention is very considerable The recognition of qualifications is a necessary if not sufficient condition for both student and labour mobility To mark the 15th anniversary of the convention this book examines some of the challenges to the international recognition of qualifications The convention is an essential legal text but it needs to be put into better practice How can learners use their degrees and qualifications in a new country without losing the real value of those qualifications The authors who come from a variety of backgrounds review the policies and practice of recognition link recognition to the broader higher education policy debate and consider the role of recognition in enabling individuals to move freely across borders Teaching Reasoning Laurel Hecker, Julia A.
