Flow of Energy

Three overlapping worksheets titled "The Flow of Energy" are displayed. The top worksheet is titled "Herbivore Scavenger Hunt" and includes a section for "Producers" with a definition: "Energy is the ability to do work. All living organisms need energy to grow, develop, reproduce, and survive. But where do they get the energy? Do all living organisms get energy from the same place?" It also features a section for "Producers" with a definition: "Every food chain begins with a producer. Plants are producers. They make their own food, which provides energy for them to grow, reproduce and survive. On Earth, there are only two types of organisms that can make their own source of food energy. Of course, the sun, water and air do this. Given these three essential ingredients, you can grow a healthy plant to begin the food chain." Below this, there are four small images of plants and a section for "Select the word that will correctly complete the sentence." with a large green arrow pointing to the text "SC.4.L.17.2".
