Aurora Textile Company Case Solution:

Aurora Textile Company Ken M. Eades, Lucas Doe, 2017 This case asks the student to decide whether Aurora Textile Company can create value by upgrading its spinning machine to produce higher quality yarn that sells for a higher margin. Cost information allows the student to produce cash flow projections for both the existing spinning machine and the new machine. The cash flows have many different cost components including depreciation, the number of days of cotton inventory and the liability costs associated with returns from retailers. The cost of capital is specified in order to simplify the analysis. The analysis has added complexity however owing to the troubled financial condition of both the company and the U.S. textile industry which is in decline as manufacturers migrate to Asia to benefit from lower manufacturing costs. This begs the question whether management should invest in a declining business or harvest the company by paying out all profits as a dividend to the owners. The case is suitable for students just beginning to learn finance principles but is also rich enough to use with experienced students and executives. The primary learning points are as follows: The basics of incremental cash flow analysis identifying the cash flows relevant to a capital investment decision. The construction of a side by side discounted cash flow analysis for a replacement decision. How to adapt the NPV decision rule to a troubled or dying industry. The effect of financial distress on the NPV calculation. The importance of sensitivity analysis to a capital investment decision.

Industry and Revolution Aurora Gómez-Galvarriato, 2013-06-03 Industrial workers not just peasants played an essential role in the Mexican Revolution. Tracing the introduction of mechanized industry into the Orizaba Valley, Aurora Gómez-Galvarriato argues convincingly that the revolution cannot be understood apart from the Industrial Revolution and thus provides a fresh perspective on both transformations. Textile Industries, 1954 Vols for include annually an issue with title Textile industries buyers guide. The Textile Magazine, 1997. Company Towns in the Americas Oliver Jürgen Dinius, Angela Vergara, 2011-01-01 Company towns were the spatial manifestation of a social ideology and an economic rationale. The contributors to this volume show how national politics, social protest and local culture transformed those founding ideologies by examining the histories of company towns in six countries: Argentina, Firmat, Brazil, Volta Redonda, Santos, Fordlandia, Canada, Sudbury, Chile, El Salvador, Mexico, Santa Rosa, Rio Blanco, and the United States, Anaconda, Kellogg, and Sunflower City. Company towns across the Americas played similar economic and social roles. They advanced the frontiers of industrial capitalism and became powerful symbols of modernity. They expanded national economies by supporting extractive industries on thinly settled frontiers and as a result brought more land, natural resources and people under the control of corporations. U.S. multinational companies exported ideas about work discipline, race and gender to Latin America as they established company towns there to extend their economic reach. Employers indeed shaped social relations in these company towns through education, welfare and leisure programs but these essays also show how working class communities reshaped these programs to serve their needs. The editors introduction and a theoretical essay by labor geographer Andrew Herod provide the context for the case studies and illuminate how the company town serves as a window into both the comparative and transnational histories of labor under industrial capitalism
