The diagram illustrates the experimental design. It shows a sequence of three boxes connected by arrows. The first box is labeled '10 s' and contains a fixation cross. The second box is labeled '10 s' and contains a word. The third box is labeled '10 s' and contains a response box. The response box is labeled 'Response' and has a 'Yes' button. The entire sequence is labeled 'Experiment 1'.

The diagram illustrates the experimental design with a timeline of 30 seconds. It starts with a 10-second fixation cross, followed by a 10-second presentation of a stimulus (a word) in a box, and then a 10-second response period. The sequence is repeated for multiple trials.

The diagram illustrates the experimental design as a 'Block Design'. It shows a sequence of events: a stimulus (represented by a word) is presented, followed by a response (represented by a checkmark). This cycle repeats for multiple trials. The trials are grouped into blocks, and the blocks are separated by rest periods. The design is labeled as a 'Block Design'.

Variation in Time and Space Anna Čermáková,Markéta Malá,2020-12-07 Variation in Time and Space Observing the World through Corpora is a collection of articles that address the theme of linguistic variation in English in its broadest sense Current research in English language presented in the book explores a fascinating number of topics whose unifying element is the corpus linguistic methodology Part I of this volume Meaning in Time and Space introduces the two dimensions of variation time and space relating them to the negotiation of meaning in discourse and questions of intertextuality Part II Variation in Time approaches the English language from a diachronic point of view the time periods covered vary considerably ranging from 16th century up to present day so do the genres explored Part III Variation in Space focuses on global varieties of English and includes a contrastive point of view The range of topics is again broad from specific lexico grammatical structures to the variation in academic English combining the regional and genre dimensions of variation This is a timely volume that shows the breadth and depth in current corpus based research of English

Free Zone Scientology Aled Thomas,2021-04-08 In this novel academic study Aled Thomas analyses modern issues surrounding boundaries and fluidity in contemporary Scientology By using the Scientologist practice of auditing as a case study this book explores the ways in which new types of Scientologies can emerge The notion of Free Zone Scientology is characterised by its horizontal structure in contrast to the vertical hierarchy of the institutional Church of Scientology With this in mind Thomas explores the Free Zone as an example of a developing and fluid religion directly addressing questions concerning authority leadership and material objects This book by maintaining a double focus on the top down hierarchy of the Church of Scientology and the horizontal fluid nature of the Free Zone breaks away from previous research on new religions which have tended to focus either on new religions as indices of broad social processes such as secularization or globalization or as exemplars of exotic processes such as charismatic authority and brainwashing Instead Thomas adopts auditing as a method of providing an in depth case study of a new religion in transition and transformation in the 21st century This opens the study of contemporary and new religions to a series of new questions around hybrid religions sacred and secular and acts as a framework for the study of similar movements formed in recent decades

Atheism and Deism Revalued Wayne Hudson,Diego Lucci,2016-04-15 Given the central role played by religion in early modern Britain it is perhaps surprising that historians have not always paid close attention to the shifting and nuanced subtleties of terms used in religious controversies In this collection particular attention is focussed upon two of the most contentious of these terms atheism and deism terms that have shaped significant parts of the scholarship on the Enlightenment This volume argues that in the seventeenth and eighteenth century atheism and deism involved fine distinctions that have not always been preserved by later scholars The original deployment and usage of these terms were often more complicated than much of the historical scholarship suggests Indeed in much of the literature static definitions are often taken for granted resulting in depictions of the past constructed upon anachronistic assumptions Offering reassessments of the historical figures most associated with atheism and deism in early modern Britain this collection opens the subject up for debate and shows how the new historiography of deism changes our understanding of heterodox religious identities in Britain from 1650 to 1800 It problematises the older view that individuals were atheist or deists in a straightforward sense and instead explores the plurality and flexibility of religious identities during this period Drawing on the most recent scholarship the volume enriches the debate about heterodoxy offering new perspectives on a range of prominent figures and providing an overview of major changes in the field Homeward mail from India, China and the East ,1891 Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,1997
