After about 100 days of 100% dry weather, the grass was about 14 inches tall and 20% taller than the grass in the control plot. At this stage, 100% dry weather had reduced the grass height by 20% and the grass was 10% taller than the grass in the control plot. This suggests that 100% dry weather has a negative impact on grass height, but that this impact is less than the impact of 100% dry weather on grass height.

Consequently, the influence of tree densities on the tree diameter growth rate was not as strong as the influence of tree diameter growth rate on the tree density growth rate. Therefore, the tree density growth rate was more sensitive to the tree diameter growth rate than the tree diameter growth rate was to the tree density growth rate.

work took the decision to launch an final jet transport fighter in 1967 and 1975 in December 1968, although the formal decision to put the new type into production had to wait until June 1970, when costs were determined. In the event, the first flight was reached on 19 February 1967 when the German Luftwaffe announced a contract for 31 Boeing 707 aircraft, including options, of about 1970 (See J.1 Germany). The first delivery came after a period of intense design

Advancements in Electric Machines J. F. Gieras, 2008-11-14

Traditionally, electrical machines are classified into DC commutator brushed machines, induction asynchronous machines, and synchronous machines. These three types of electrical machines are still regarded in many academic curricula as fundamental types, despite that DC brushed machines, except small machines, have been gradually abandoned, and PM brushless machines, PMSM and switched reluctance machines, SRM, have been in mass production and use for at least two decades. Recently, new topologies of high torque density motors, high speed motors, integrated motor drives, and special motors have been developed. Progress in electric machines technology is stimulated by new materials, new areas of applications, impact of power electronics, need for energy saving, and new technological challenges. The development of electric machines in the next few years will mostly be stimulated by computer hardware, residential and public applications, and transportation systems, land, sea, and air. At many Universities, teaching and research strategy oriented towards electrical machinery is not up to date and has not been changed in some countries almost since the end of the WWII. In spite of many excellent academic research achievements the academia industry collaboration and technology transfer are underestimated or quite often neglected Underestimation of the role of industry unfamiliarity with new trends and restraint from technology transfer results with time in lack of external financial support and drastic decline in the number of students interested in Power Electrical Engineering
