

ACMA Basic Composites Manual Study Guide (Module 1/2)

What are the beneficial characteristics of composite materials? - High Strength, Light Weight, Corrosion Resistance, Design Flexibility, Durability, Production Flexibility, Size Range

High Strength: Composite materials can be designed to meet the specific strength requirements of an application. A distinct advantage of composites over other materials is the ability to use many combinations of resins and reinforcements, and therefore to custom tailor the mechanical and physical properties of a structure.

Light Weight: Composites are materials that can be designed to have light weight and high strength. In fact, composites are used to produce structures with the highest specific strength of all engineering materials.

Corrosion Resistance: Composites products provide long-term performance with environmental exposure and resistance to severe chemical environments.

Composites are often the material of choice for outdoor exposure, chemical handling applications, and severe environmental conditions.

Design Flexibility: Composites have an advantage over other materials because they can be molded into complex shapes at relatively low cost. The flexibility of creating complex shapes offers design freedom that is a hallmark of composites achievement.

Durability: Composite structures have an exceedingly long-life span. The longevity of composites, along with their low maintenance requirements, is a major benefit in critical applications. There are many well-designed composite structures constructed over fifty years ago that are still in active use today.

Production Flexibility: Composites products can be manufactured in low-volume, or even "One-off" production, and in high-volume serial production producing thousands of units per year.
