

Arts-infused ELA/Math/Drama Lesson Plan

Lesson/Activity:

Drama:

- Instruct students on how to use their bodies to create tableaux (frozen pictures) of the shapes from the story. Students should use facial expressions, imagination, and varying levels to represent the text.
- Students will be divided into small groups. Each group will be assigned to represent the shapes during the reading (e.g., triangle, square, pentagon).
- The teacher will guide them in problem-solving how to connect their bodies to form the correct number of sides and vertices for their assigned shape.
- For example, three students could form a triangle by holding hands and extending their bodies to create the three sides and three vertices. Students will practice holding their poses silently, embodying the static nature of a tableau.

Students may also be given the option to choose their own shape or part of the story.

Wrap Up:

- Take a "snapshot" of the tableaux by pretending to click a camera and take a pretend picture.
- Have students discuss what they see in the tableau and how it represents the text.
