The Future of Atmospheric Chemistry Research National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate, Committee on the Future of Atmospheric Chemistry Research, 2017-01-29 Our world is changing at an accelerating rate The global human population has grown from 6.1 billion to 7.1 billion in the last 15 years and is projected to reach 11.2 billion by the end of the century The distribution of humans across the globe has also shifted with more than 50 percent of the global population now living in urban areas compared to 29 percent in 1950. Along with these trends increasing energy demands, expanding industrial activities and intensification of agricultural activities worldwide have in turn led to changes in emissions that have altered the composition of the atmosphere. These changes have led to major challenges for society including deleterious impacts on climate, human and ecosystem health. Climate change is one of the greatest environmental challenges facing society today. Air pollution is a major threat to human health as one out of eight deaths globally is caused by air pollution. And future food production and global food security are vulnerable to both global change and air pollution. Atmospheric chemistry research is a key part of understanding and responding to these challenges. The Future of Atmospheric Chemistry Research: Remembering Yesterday, Understanding Today, Anticipating Tomorrow summarizes the rationale and need for supporting a comprehensive U.S. research program in atmospheric chemistry, comments on the broad trends in laboratory, field, satellite and modeling studies of atmospheric chemistry, determines the priority areas of research for advancing the basic science of atmospheric chemistry and identifies the highest priority needs for improvements in the research infrastructure to address those priority research topics. This report describes the scientific advances over the past decade in six core areas of atmospheric chemistry: emissions, chemical transformation, oxidants, atmospheric dynamics and circulation, aerosol particles and clouds, and biogeochemical cycles and deposition. This material was developed for the NSF's Atmospheric Chemistry Program; however, the findings will be of interest to other agencies and programs that support atmospheric chemistry research.

Induced plant responses to microbes and insects Corné M. J. Pieterse, Marcel Dicke, Saskia C. M. Van Wees, Erik H. Poelman, 2014-04-14. Plants are members of complex communities and interact both with antagonists and beneficial organisms. An important question in plant defense signaling research is how plants integrate signals induced by pathogens, insect herbivores and beneficial microbes into the most appropriate adaptive response. Molecular and genomic tools are now being used to uncover the complexity of the induced defense signaling networks that have evolved during the arms races between plants and the other organisms with which they intimately interact. To understand the functioning of the complex defense signaling network in nature, molecular biologists and ecologists have joined forces to place molecular mechanisms of induced plant defenses in an ecological perspective. In this Research Topic, we aim to provide an on line open access snapshot of the current state of the art of the field of induced plant responses to microbes and insects with a special focus on the translation of molecular mechanisms to ecology and vice versa.

Stress Response Mechanisms of Bacterial Pathogens Jyl S. Matson,Tracy Raivio,2020-05-21 A critical factor for bacterial survival in any environment is the ability to sense and respond appropriately to insults that cause stress to the cell threatening its survival Most of these stressors first affect the outer surface of the bacterial cell are sensed in some way and defense measures are enacted in response If the bacteria successfully respond to an encountered stress they survive and multiply If they are unsuccessful or inefficient in their response it can result in death Efficiently responding to factors that induce stress is especially important for bacteria that inhabit environments that are constantly changing or for those that inhabit more than one biological niche In addition bacterial species that associate with humans and other organisms must be able to overcome stresses that are produced by the host immune response in order to colonize and cause disease The wide variety of stressors encountered by bacteria has resulted in countless strategies that are used by pathogens to overcome these insults which we continue to identify Clearly a better understanding of these stress response mechanisms may be useful for developing new strategies to combat bacteria that cause certain infectious diseases This Research Topic aims to highlight our increasing understanding of mechanisms by which bacteria sense and respond to stresses encountered in the host or other environments Examples of stress response mechanisms of interest include but are not limited to those that respond to antimicrobials host immune responses or environmental changes
