There are a number of important points that need to be made about the results of the study. First, the study was a pilot study and the results are preliminary. Second, the study was conducted in a single center and the results may not be generalizable to other settings. Third, the study was a retrospective study and the results may be biased. Fourth, the study was a descriptive study and the results do not establish causality. Finally, the study was a small study and the results may be affected by chance.
