from all areas of bridge engineering Handbook of Cellular Metals Hans Peter Degischer, Brigitte Kriszt, 2002 The past few years have seen an increasing interest in porous metallic materials especially in foams made of aluminum or aluminum alloys The stimulus for this lies in recent process developments which promise materials with better quality and lower cost Moreover the environment for the application of new materials has greatly changed Nowadays higher demands for passenger safety in automobiles or for easy materials recycling make metal foams attractive where a few years ago the same material would have been ruled out for technical or economical reasons This handbook gives any materials scientist and engineer involved in the research development and application of metal foams an overview on the most recent results on new production processes applications and industrial uses as well as the important topic of characterization and properties of these advanced materials

Constitutive Models for Rubber IV Per-Erik Austrell, Leif Kari, 2017-12-04 The unique properties of elastomeric materials offer numerous advantages in many engineering applications Elastomeric units are used as couplings or mountings between rigid components for example in shock absorbers vibration insulators flexible joints seals and suspensions etc However the complicated nature of the behaviour of such material makes it difficult to accurately predict the performance of these units using finite element modelling for example It is imperative that constitutive models accurately capture relevant aspects of mechanical behaviour The latest developments concerning constitutive modelling of rubber is collected in these Proceedings Topics included in this volume are Hyperelastic models Strength fracture fatigue Dynamic properties the Fletcher Gent effect Micro mechanical statistical approaches Stress softening iscoelasticity Filler reinforcement and Tyres fibre cord reinforced rubber
