Industrial Robots Programming J. Norberto Pires, 2007-04-03 Industrial Robots Programming focuses on designing and building robotic manufacturing cells and explores the capabilities of today's industrial equipment as well as the latest computer and software technologies. Special attention is given to the input devices and systems that create efficient human machine interfaces and how they help non-technical personnel perform necessary programming control and supervision tasks. Drawing upon years of practical experience and using numerous examples and illustrative applications J. Norberto Pires covers robotics programming as it applies to The current industrial robotic equipment including manipulators control systems and programming environments. Software interfaces that can be used to develop distributed industrial manufacturing cells and techniques which can be used to build interfaces between robots and computers. Real world applications with examples designed and implemented recently in the lab. Industrial Robots Programming has been selected for indexing by Scopus. Rapid development observed in modern production is firmly connected with the development of new assembly and disassembly systems. In small batch production where fast changes of products and short development times of new products are demanded development of reliable fast adaptable and self-teaching assembly systems can be observed. Important fields of product development such as product design development of planning systems simulation and modelling logistics mechatronics and sensors development of new assembly system components as well as collecting and processing of knowledge are essential for the development of new intelligent assembly systems IAS. The aim of this colloquium specialised on IAD is to highlight this topic show the actual results of the research and development work set the direction of future development and analyse the possibilities of introducing of IAD into the production process.
