Handbook of Research on Creating Spaces for African Epistemologies in the Inclusive Education Discourse Maguvhe, Mbulaheni Obert, Masuku, Mfundu Mandla, 2021-12-31 Students with disabilities who are not able to perform to the best of their abilities often find themselves learning in inaccessible environments and subjected to increased stress levels due to the haphazard provisioning of education characterized by physical, communicative, and unsuitable teaching and learning approaches. Very often this is a result of various shortcomings including unfair assessment practices. Misconceptions and a lack of knowledge with regard to the implementation of inclusive education detract from the successful admission of students with disabilities and their retention and active participation. The Handbook of Research on Creating Spaces for African Epistemologies in the Inclusive Education Discourse explores the concept of inclusive education in an African context. It advocates for the monitoring and evaluation of inclusive education and proposes interventions where reasonable accommodation or lack of accessibility is a reason for students with disabilities to not benefit from this system. Covering topics such as barriers to learning, rural schools and student support, this major reference work is an essential resource for administrators, advocates for students with disabilities, policymakers, researchers, pre-service teachers, educators, academicians and students.

Health Psychology Edward P. Sarafino, Timothy W. Smith, 2022-01-12 Explore multiple disciplines to understand the impact of psychology on health and vice versa. In the newly revised 10th edition of Health Psychology: Biopsychosocial Interactions, a team of dedicated psychologists delivers an insightful and multidisciplinary demonstration of the impact of psychology and health on one another. Relying heavily on cross-cultural data, the book offers a sweeping and inclusive picture of health psychology and includes local and global research and case studies. The authors have included boxed materials in each chapter that directs the reader's attention to the right information at the right time. Behavioral, physiological, cognitive, and social/personality viewpoints are addressed throughout the text, and a strong focus on lifespan development in health and illness pervades the material. Readers will also find psychological perspectives on a wide variety of health issues from various parts of the world. Highlights of what works for practicing psychologists and what doesn't when their work intersects with other fields in health. Expansive treatments of topics like the effect of stress on health, the impact of adverse childhood experiences, and the interaction between religiosity and health.

Health Psychology: Biopsychosocial Interactions is an essential resource for undergraduate students in psychology with an interest in health. It's also invaluable for allied health professionals, addictions counselors, dietitians, and nutritionists, and social workers seeking an authoritative resource on the effect of psychology on their daily work.

Integrations of Clinical and Social Psychology Gifford Weary, Herbert L. Mirels, 1982 This wide-ranging anthology of current research bridges clinical and social psychology, concentrating on clinical judgment, the development of maladaptive behavior, and intervention strategies. Holmes, 1998 This book presents a concise introductory text covering the core topics of abnormal psychology in one short volume. The book highlights essential information needed by students thus can also be easily read by those with little previous knowledge of the subject and it covers a wide range of material that is in depth and to a high academic standard. The book is divided into two parts an introduction to the area followed by the main categories of abnormal behaviour as they are currently classified. Thus the definition history treatment diagnosis and context of abnormal behaviour are clarified before coverage of the individual disorders. The major areas of mental disorder following the DSM classification are then described evaluated and illustrated by case studies. In addition other aspects of abnormal psychology such as community health legal and forensic issues are explained along with descriptions of the work of the many professionals involved. For the lay reader there is a glossary of the technical terms used and suggested further reading for each chapter. For the advanced student a comprehensive reference section has been included at the end of the book together with chapter summaries and self test questions at the end of each chapter Human Ecology and Community Robert J. Gregory, 2003 Those who work with ecological perspectives often choose and use human communities as convenient locales for both research and practice. Too individuals and groupings within a community do communicate and relate with each other in bounded or circumscribed contexts thus interlock together and influence each other as well as their surrounding physical and political environment. In addition communities are purposeful in that people do follow various values and beliefs thereby displaying still another of the many properties of system ness. Community psychologists like applied anthropologists some public health workers political scientists and sociologists have found that the sub groupings within a community are definable observable and related to each other and to the larger power structures of a particular community. As such these groupings are inherently intriguing as integral parts of the human condition. Palmerston North represents one such typical community in New Zealand. In this study ten community psychology oriented researchers went forth to explore and describe specific groupings then examined these parts and relationships of an entire community of people through use of ecological points of view. The process revealed both diversity and common themes and as well a fascinating and pleasant place to live.
