Activities For Chapter 6 In Outsiders:

Teaching Global History Alan J. Singer, 2012-04-27 Teaching Global History challenges prospective and beginning social studies teachers to formulate their own views about what is important to know in global history and why. It explains how to organize the curriculum around broad social studies concepts and themes and student questions about humanity, history and the contemporary world. All chapters include lesson ideas, a sample lesson plan with activity sheets, primary source documents and helpful charts, graphs, photographs and maps. High school students' responses are woven in throughout. Additional material corresponding to each chapter is posted online at http://people.hofstra.edu/alan_j_singer. The traditional curriculum tends to highlight the Western heritage and to race through epochs and regions, leaving little time for an in-depth exploration of concepts and historical themes. Offering an alternative to such pre-packaged textbook outlines and materials, this text is a powerful resource for promoting thoughtful reflection and debate about what the global history curriculum should be and how to teach it.

Outsourcing of Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages Tae-Hee Choi, 2024-11-29 This book documents and analyses how outsourcing of teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) is practised, arising from issues therein and how to address them through the frame of policy enactment theory. Educational outsourcing or contracting out is globally adopted to increase cost efficiency, diversify curricula and complement teacher expertise. However, it often results in issues of quality and equity, inadvertently compromising student learning and limiting the mobility of students from low-income families. The book draws on document-based research involving 131 schools in Hong Kong and case studies and a survey with selected schools and educational service providers. This book is of interest to policymakers, school leaders, teachers and educational service providers, as it suggests the strategies addressing the above-mentioned issues and will advance their understanding of educational outsourcing, equity and policy processes.

Reclaiming Radical Ideas in Schools Andrew Moffat, 2017-12-01 Reclaiming Radical Ideas in Schools provides support for every primary school in the provision of Spiritual, Moral, Social and Cultural Development (SMSC), the teaching of British values and preparation for life in modern Britain. Providing practical and tried and tested strategies, this resource will help primary schools work together to create an inclusive environment that focuses on reducing radicalisation and radical ideas. It will support schools in creating an ethos for young children where their questions about the world are explored and answered without fear or discrimination. Moffat is the author of No Outsiders in Our School Teaching the Equality Act in Primary Schools, which provides teachers with a curriculum that promotes equality for all sections of the community. Using the No Outsiders model as a foundation, this new book complements it by putting emphasis on engaging parent communities in the school ethos. The resource includes 13 lesson plans to deliver with children and their parents in school-based workshops with homework activities to follow. Each lesson is based around a picture book and includes fun activities alongside discussion of issues on individual differences.

including race gender and sexuality The resource also provides guidance on how to deliver assemblies that support the No Outsiders ethos and how to approach discussing terrorism with children This is an invaluable resource for anyone working in a primary school setting as well as trainee teachers ITT providers and educational advisors The aim is to extend the successful No Outsiders ethos beyond the school gates to the community to ensure that we are working together to develop a safe and cohesive British society Trade Union Leadership in India Edwin J.
