The Technology of Vitamins in Food P. Berry Ottaway, 2012-12-06 The last few years have seen a growing consumer awareness of nutrition and healthy eating in general. As a consequence the food industry has become more concerned with the nutritional value of products and the maintenance of guaranteed micronutrient levels. While the food industry has the responsibility of producing foods that provide a realistic supply of nutrients including vitamins it is now also required to offer produce with a high degree of convenience and a long shelf life. Vitamins are relatively unstable being affected by factors such as heat, light and other food components but also by the processes needed to preserve the goods or to convert them into consumer products such as pasteurization, sterilization, extrusion and irradiation. The result of these interactions may be a partial or total degradation of the vitamins. Food technology is concerned with both the maintenance of vitamin levels in foods and the restoration of the vitamin content to foods where losses have occurred. In addition foods designed for special nutritional purposes such as infant food and slimming goods need to be enriched or fortified with vitamins and other micronutrients. This book reviews vitamins as ingredients of industrially manufactured food products. The technology of their production and use is covered from the food technologist's and engineer's points of view. Detailed coverage is also provided of other technical aspects such as analysis, stability and the use of vitamins as food technological aids.

Aflatoxins Irineo Torres-Pacheco, 2011-10-21 This book is divided into three sections. The section called Aflatoxin Contamination discusses the importance that this subject has for a country like the case of China and mentions examples that illustrate the ubiquity of aflatoxins in various commodities. The section Measurement and Analysis describes the concept of measurement and analysis of aflatoxins from a historical perspective, the legal and the state of the art in methodologies and techniques. Finally the section entitled Approaches for Prevention and Control of Aflatoxins on Crops and on Different Foods describes actions to prevent and mitigate the genotoxic effect of one of the most conspicuous aflatoxins AFB1. In turn it points out interventions to reduce identified aflatoxin induced illness at agricultural, dietary and strategies that can control aflatoxin. Besides the preventive management several approaches have been employed including physical, chemical, biological treatments and solvent extraction to detoxify AF in contaminated feeds and feedstuffs.
