

Business enterprises are major institutions in every society that greatly influence the way we live. We give value and importance to a truck driver who moves goods quickly from places where they are produced to where they are needed. Small shops make a variety of goods available at a price the buyer is willing to pay. These are only a few examples of the contributions of business enterprises for our daily life. Business enterprises are also social institutions, as they are comprised of human groups working towards goals that agree with the overall goals of a society. In large business enterprises like banks, a number of employees work together. The employees in banks are part of the society with different backgrounds. The existence of such institutions like banks brought employees together to work for one common goal.
