Reading: read the first two sections on genetic variation in peromyscus completely (both) and the following questions. Respond to these prior understanding of the concepts discussed in the lecture.

1. Match each of the following changes in chromosome structure to its definition:

☒ A. Crossing

☐ B. Duplication

☐ C. Inversion

☐ D. Translocation

1a. is fusion of 2 chromosomes by their ends

1b. is fusion of 2 chromosomes in distal ends

1c. is segment of one chromosome that moves and attaches to different chromosome (translocation, chromosome)

1d. is fusion of 2 chromosomes (segment from one moves from one to other)

2. How many genetically different gametes can be produced from a diploid cell with 4 pairs of chromosomes (pairs)? Explain your answer.

Answer: the number of genetically different gametes that can be produced is equal to 2^n where n is total number of chromosomes pairs. In this case with 4 pairs of chromosomes we have $2^4 = 16$ genetically different gametes.

3. Although you will learn a mechanism of mutation prior to learning how mutations that occur, mutations cause the loss of genetic information. For example, both color and eye shape may occur. How do mutations together?

Answer: mutations can be inherited together and passed on to the next generation. This is because they are both passed on together as a unit, and a mutation in one gene can only occur if the other mutation in the same gene occurs. This is because they are both passed on together.

4. Describe the alignment of chromosomes during prophase I, write the sequence.

During prophase I, chromosomes condense and homologous chromosomes align together, called synapsis. This is a key step because it allows for crossing over to occur and results in the genetic recombination.

5. How does recombination lead to chromosomal polymorphism? Describe how types of genetic mutations that can result from recombination.
