

Wheels and Tires

The most important factor of safe vehicle operation is regular and correct tire maintenance. Tire economy is also dependent upon correct inflation and regular cross-switching to secure maximum wear.

TIRE PRESSURE

The practice of checking tire pressure each time you lubricate your car or whenever if you do little driving, is the most important item of maintenance to increase tire life and economy. It is also a good precaution to inspect your tires visually each time you drive your car for you may detect a partially deflated tire which, if driven, might be ruined.

Tire pressure will change slightly because of expansion due to heat. The following recommended pressures are an average which you should follow for build-up, due to expansion and dropping of pressure due to cold, has been considered.

Model	Tire Size	Pressure Front	Pressure Rear
4-73 Station Wagon	6.70 x 15	20 lbs.	24 lbs.
4-73 Jeopard	6.40 x 15	24 lbs.	24 lbs.
1-73 Panel Delivery	6.70 x 15	26 lbs.	24 lbs.
6-73 Station Wagon	6.70 x 15	20 lbs.	24 lbs.
6-73 Jeopard	6.40 x 15	24 lbs.	24 lbs.

When checking pressure be sure that you use an accurate gauge and don't fail to reinstall the valve caps for they prevent the entrance of dirt and seal the valves against loss of pressure.

TIRE ROTATION

Other than correct inflation, the most important tire care, to increase wear and economy, is cross-switching or tire rotation.

Due to the driving forces, steering effort, and average road contours equal wear does not occur on all four tires. By correctly rotating the tires, including the spare, the useful life of all the tires is increased and you receive the maximum service and economy from all five.

The tires should be rotated, as shown in the illustration, each 5,000 miles. The rear wheels should be moved to the opposite front positions and the front wheels straight back to the rear, installing the spare wheel in place of the one which was on the right front.

WHEEL ALIGNMENT

Front wheel alignment must be accurately adjusted to insure tire life. The wheels of your car were adjusted at the factory and rechecked by your Dealer before delivery to you. You
