

3. Marking points

3.1 Marking of lists

This applies to questions requiring a set number of responses, but for which students have provided extra responses. The general principle to be followed in such a situation is that 'right + wrong = wrong'.

Each error / contradiction negates each correct response. So, if the number of errors / contradictions equals or exceeds the number of marks available for the question, no marks can be awarded.

However, responses considered to be neutral (indicated as * in example 1) are not penalised.

Example 1: What is the pH of an acidic solution?

[1 mark]

Student	Response	Marks awarded
1	green, 5	0
2	red*, 5	1
3	red*, 8	0

Example 2: Name two magnetic materials.

[2 marks]

Student	Response	Marks awarded
1	iron, steel, aluminium, copper	0

3.2 Marking of questions requiring a list

For questions requiring a specified number of responses (marked as a specified number of marks), students are required to provide a specified number of responses. If a student provides more than the specified number of responses, the responses are marked as follows:

3.2.1 Marking questions requiring a list

Students should be awarded the mark value of the question (provided correctly), as students are required to show their working. If a student provides a specified number of responses, they will receive the mark value of the question. If a student provides more than the specified number of responses, the responses may be marked as follows:

Full marks are only awarded if a correct response is given that is not marked as wrong.

3.2.2 Marking questions requiring a list

Students using the word 'or' should be given credit only if it is clear that they are referring to the correct answer.
