Word Problems Stephen K. Reed, 1998-12-01 Research by cognitive psychologists and mathematics educators has often been compartmentalized by departmental boundaries Word Problems integrates this research to show its relevance to the debate on the reform of mathematics education Beginning with the different knowledge structures that represent rule learning and conceptual learning the discussion proceeds to the application of these ideas to solving word problems This is followed by chapters on elementary multistep and algebra problems which examine similarities and differences in the cognitive skills required by students as the problems become more complex The next section on abstracting adapting and representing solutions illustrates different ways in which solutions can be transferred to related problems The last section focuses on topics emphasized in the NCTM Standards and concludes with a chapter that evaluates some of the programs on curriculum reform

Early Childhood Identity Rita Chen, 2009 Researchers in a range of fields have acknowledged that childhood is a construct emerging from modernist perspectives that have not always benefited those who are younger The purposes of the Rethinking Childhood series are to provide critical locations for scholarship that challenges the universalization of childhood and introduces new reconceptualized and critical spaces from which opportunities and possibilities are generated for those who are younger Diverse histories and cultures are considered of major importance as well as issues of critical social justice
