- Strategic energy management includes both energy and technology
- There is also lots of other conceptualised energy: It states that energy manifests by itself, not inside technology. It has means that distributed energy technology is the industrial infrastructure instead of a process. Electricity's energy was the strongest from our early civilisation.

- This effect is stronger in firms in countries with stronger legal systems
- There is also evidence that minority interests in firms are associated with lower earnings persistence, which means that firms with minority interests are more likely to report higher earnings in the short run, but lower earnings in the long run. This suggests that firms with minority interests are more likely to report higher earnings in the short run, but lower earnings in the long run.
