Valentine, 1996-12-15 Representing the state of the art in evolutionary paleobiology this book provides a much needed overview of this rapidly changing field An influx of ideas and techniques both from other areas of biology and from within paleobiology itself have resulted in numerous recent advances including increased recognition of the relationships between ecological and evolutionary theory renewed vigor in the study of ecological communities over geologic timescales increased understanding of biogeographical patterns and new mathematical approaches to studying the form and structure of plants and animals Contributors to this volume a veritable who's who of eminent researchers present the results of original research and new theoretical developments and provide directions for future studies Individually wide ranging these papers all share a debt to the work of James W Valentine one of the founders of modern evolutionary paleobiology This volume's unified approach to the study of life on earth will be a major contribution to paleobiology evolution and ecology      The London Journal ,1865      Resources in education ,1982      Biology Cecie Starr, John Alcock, 1991      Enzymes in the Environment Richard G. Burns, Richard P. Dick, 2002-01-29 The need to understand the biological processes that are important for essential aquatic and terrestrial ecosystem function has prompted much research into the field of ecological enzymology This book presents the two broad areas of application in a compilation of reviews by 21 international experts in their respective fields The first explores enzymatic activities to assess the processes or mechanisms that operate in a given system such as the rhizosphere plant leaves and shoots soil surfaces and biofilms The second considers enzymes or microbial cells as sensors to detect microbial activity and stresses due to pollution management or climatic change in both aquatic and terrestrial ecosystems      The Subversive Science Paul Shepard, 1969 Population explosion pollution suburban sprawl death of the city the vanishing wilderness we keep hearing of these threats but usually manage to ignore them In this book we find instead a number of clear calm discussions of environmental problems providing information and ideas without excessive emotional appeal The 37 papers chosen from a wide variety of journals such as Human Biology Daedalus Landscape American Scientist are obviously intended for the nonspecialist intelligent reader They are divided into five groups of which the first deals with population problems both human and animal The Environmental Encounter is the title of a group of papers discussing man's reaction to his environment what he sees and the way he feels about it Here are included comments on American front yards the shapes of roofs in different European countries the importance of sacred places and an essay by Alan Watts reprinted from The Psychedelic Review The third and fourth sections are called Man and Other Organisms and Man in Ecosystems Here we learn about the domestication of cattle sidelights on evolution Ren Dubos comments on the germ theory the possible unexpected effects of pesticides and radiation A hopeful note appears in a discussion of the use of solar energy The final part called Ethos Ecos and Ethics includes more philosophical commentaries Especially interesting is a discussion by Lynn White of the historical roots of our ecologic crisis from a review by Marjorie C Meehan in Jama jama.jamanetwork.com/article.aspx?articleid=345416 Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1991
