Retention of Military Skills Acquired in Basic Combat Training Robert D. McDonald, 1967 Performance data were collected in the three general Basic Combat Training proficiency areas rifle marksmanship physical combat fitness end of cycle tests from independent groups of soldiers 60 per group during BCT during Advanced Individual Training AIT and Combat Support Training CST and for permanent party personnel in the Army six to 12 months These data were collected at three U S Army Training Centers under comparable conditions Results on the three areas tested indicated a general performance decrement over the one year period sampled While these performance decrements were statistically significant the percentage decrements from the BCT level were relatively small and their practical significance is open to question Author

Mortar Utilization at the Army's Combat Training Centers Stephen J. Kirin, Rand Corporation, 1992 This study was requested by the Center for Army Lessons Learned CALL whose data collection process at the Combat Training Centers CTCs indicated that mortar platoons in both light and heavy battalions in the United States and Europe were not making an effective contribution to battle outcomes Whereas their data contained anecdotal points and summary statements of mortar problems CALL wished for a more systematic investigation of the mortar problem so it could recommend remedial actions The objectives of this work were to answer four questions Is it true that mortars are underutilized at the CTCs Are CTC results a proper measure of mortar performance If the first two answers are yes can the causes of underutilization be identified and Can fixes be identified in doctrine training organization leadership or equipment to improve mortar performance Take Home Packages THP and field observations prepared by three CTCs were reviewed to assist in evaluating mortar training These data suggested that light medium and heavy mortar weapons were underutilized or ineffective at all three CTCs studied The National Training Center NTC the Joint Readiness Training Center JRTC and the Combat Maneuver Training Center CMTC The authors also reviewed the methods employed at each CTC to replicate indirect fire and its effects Battle Damage Assessment was performed by fire markers or by observer controllers according to fire effects tables These data confirmed that mortars caused little damage and mortar ammunition expenditure fell far below that expected Mortars are underutilized at the CTCs because of perceived limited effects of suppression and for heavy mortar training limited dismounted infantry activity at NTC and CMTC The authors conclude that staff planning failure is the prime cause of mortar underutilization The responsibility for this problem is shared between the maneuver and fire support staffs 45 tables 16 figures 19 refs 7

Department of Defense Staff, 2002-04-01 The preface to this U S Army manual FM 3 25 150 states This field manual contains information and guidance pertaining to rifle bayonet fighting and hand to hand combat The hand to hand combat portion of this manual is divided into basic and advanced training This manual serves as a guide for instructors trainers and soldiers in the art of instinctive rifle bayonet fighting According to the manual Hand to hand combat is an engagement between two or more persons in an empty handed struggle or with hand held weapons such as knives sticks or projectile weapons that cannot be fired Proficiency in hand to hand combat is one of the fundamental building blocks for training the modern soldier Soldiers must be prepared to use different levels of force in an environment where conflict may change from low intensity to high intensity over a matter of hours Many military operations such as peacekeeping missions or noncombatant evacuation may restrict the use of deadly weapons Hand to hand combatives training will save lives when an unexpected confrontation occurs More importantly combatives training helps to instill courage and self confidence With competence comes the understanding of controlled aggression and the ability to remain focused while under duress Training in combatives includes hard and arduous physical training that is at the same time mentally demanding and carries over to other military pursuits The overall effect of combatives training is the culmination of a successful physical fitness program enhancing individual and unit strength flexibility balance and cardiorespiratory fitness and building personal courage self confidence self discipline and esprit de corps As such this manual provides a unique heavily illustrated training manual for a number of hand to hand combat techniques Chapter Three deals with basic ground fighting techniques Basic ground fighting techniques build a fundamental understanding of dominant body position which should be the focus of most combatives training before moving on to the more difficult standing techniques Ground fighting is also where technique can most easily be used to overcome size and strength Before any killing or disabling technique can be applied the soldier must first gain and maintain dominant body position The leverage gained from dominant body position allows the fighter to defeat a stronger opponent An appreciation for dominant position is fundamental to becoming a proficient fighter because it ties together what would otherwise be a long confusing list of unrelated techniques If a finishing technique is attempted from dominant position and fails the fighter can simply try again If on the other hand a finishing technique is attempted from other than dominant position and fails it will usually mean defeat Attacks include the collar choke single wing choke straight arm bar arm lock guillotine choke scissors sweep Captain Kirk ankle grab knee push triangle choke knee mount leg attacks straight ankle lock and figure four ankle lock Striking called an integral part of all actual fighting includes pass the guard with strikes striking from side control defending against strikes and more Takedowns and throws are covered in detail Later chapters cover handheld weapons using the bayonet or knife which may be the ideal weapon to dispatch the enemy Field expedient weapons are discussed including the entrenching tool three foot sticks and six foot pole Standing defense techniques against unarmed and armed opponents are reviewed Restrictive force scenarios include two against one three against two one against two and two against three
