It's called blockchain and it promises to disrupt the way people interact with one another online whether its messaging banking keeping up with medical records land records booking a vacation socializing or voting. Programs are also being developed to use blockchain to serve as one's identity papers. Blockchain technology is based on the idea that all online transactions should be between two people without the need for public or private third party oversight. Blockchain technology developers believe thoughts and ideas should be shared not quashed. It's a world where web platforms are governed by their members not a board of directors. These components comprise the next generation of the world wide web which is referred to as Web 3.0. This book offers a peek into this new world with examples of how this technology is being used today as well as the hurdles including legal challenges it must overcome to be viable. So if you're ready let's meet blockchain.
